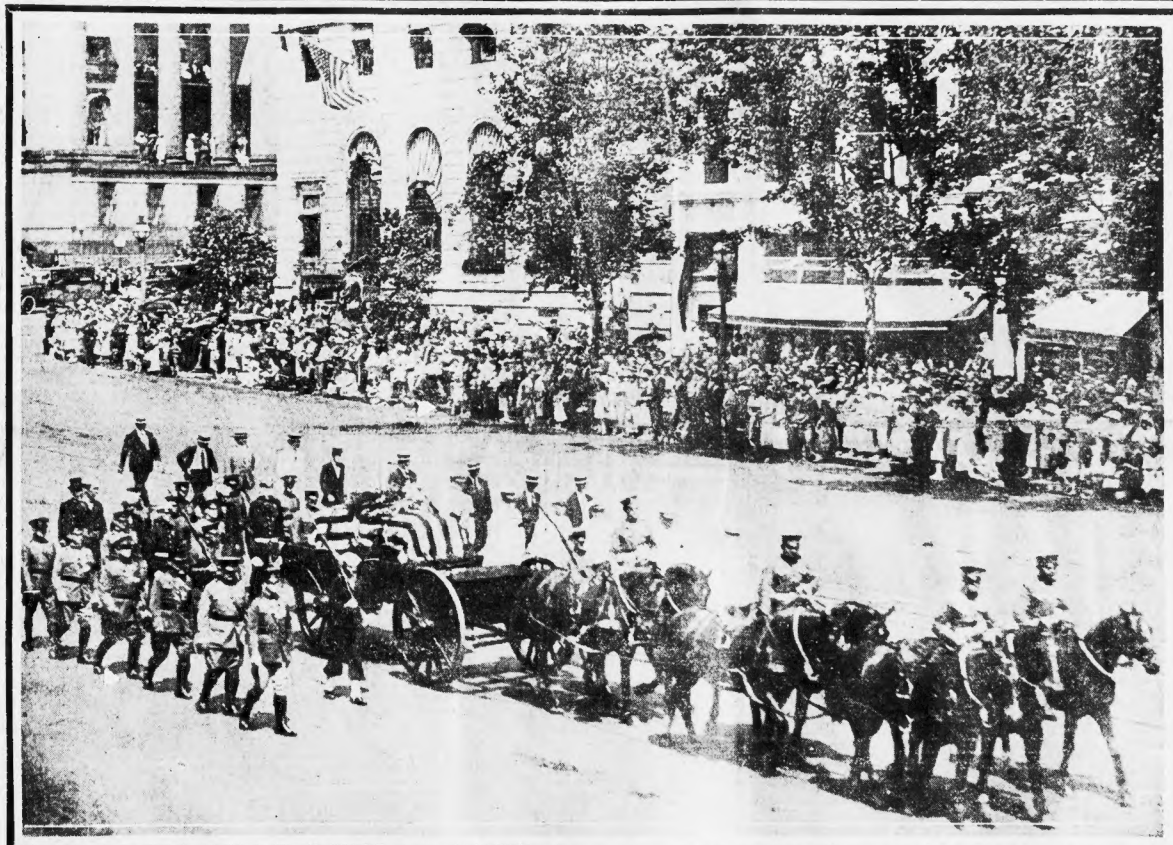
MILLION LINE OHIO PATH OF HARDING FUNERAL TRAIN



FIRST PHOTOS OF THE FUNERAL CORTEGE OF THE LATE PRESIDENT HARDING AT WASHINGTON—Photo shows the procession on the way from the White House to the Capitol. The body reposes in the casket mounted on the gun caisson drawn by seven magnificent bay horses. Alongside are the soldiers, mariners and sailers, body bearers, flanked on each side by the six admirals and six generals in their dress uniforms. The honorary pallbearers are directly behind in automobiles followed by the car carrying Mrs. Harding. (All photos on this page are copyrighted by International News Reel.)

BODY BACK IN HOME STATE

Marion, O., Aug. 9.—His home town of Marion awoke today, eagerly awaiting the arrival of the funeral train bearing back to Ohio for eternal rest the body of Warren G. Harding.

The train was due to arrive here at 10 a. m., Central standard time, preparatory to the final funeral services tomorrow.

Early today the funeral train, about two hours late, reached Ohio soil and along the route throngs assembled, especially at Canton, the home town of President McKinley. There were 20,000 at the station in that city to pay tribute to Ohio's native son.

It is estimated that 1,000,000 gathered along the route to see the train pass.

The elaborate services yesterday were for Warren G. Harding, President of the United States; the simple services here tomorrow will be for Warren G. Harding, citizen, friend, neighbor—and husband.

For two days his friends and neighbors will accord the late President the customary funeral rites of the small towns of the Middle West, and then, with strict simplicity, will accompany Mrs. Harding and the body to the cemetery where it will be entombed tomorrow afternoon.

Only relatives and intimate friends will make up the small party going to the cemetery. Even newspaper men will be excluded from the services at the tomb.

When the funeral train arrives

FRENCH SWIMMER TRIES THE CHANNEL

Boulogne, Aug. 9 (U. S. S.)—The French swimmer, Michel, who set out at 10 o'clock last night to swim the English Channel in emulation of Henry Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass., was still in the water at 10 o'clock this morning. His position is not given.

SLURS HARDING; SAVES LIFE BY KISSING FLAG

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 9.—With a rope about his neck, the rope tossed over a limb, and at the other end a crowd of men maddened by slurring remarks cast upon the memory of President Harding, Salvador Ross, organizer for a communist group, pleaded for mercy, kissed the American flag, swore to uphold it and saved his life.

Ross and his wife, who had been heeding insolence of Toledo, bitterly attacked the dead President.

Two men pulled him and his wife from the platform. A rope was placed around his neck and he was taken to a woods, [illegible]

A rope thrown over a limb [illegible] prisoners became frantic [illegible] refused to beg forgiveness. His wife, a woman then was led away.

AMERICAN'S 'SCOOP' ON FUNERAL PICTURES A WORLD'S RECORD

ON STREET SALE FEW MINUTES AFTER PLANE ARRIVES FROM WASHINGTON

By BERT FORD.

A lot of newspaper magic—first pictures of President Harding's funeral in Washington, appeared to be on its face. But in reality it was due to careful calculation, plus up-to-the-minute journalistic enterprise and efficiency.

Delivery of thousands of extras to newsboys exactly thirteen minutes after the photographs were received in the hands of the Managing Editor and thirty-two minutes after they arrived from the Capital by airplane, was a record for the Hearst service, which meant a world's record.

Thirteen minutes to get the matrices into lead plates which were buckled to the presses which ground out thousands of superbly illustrated Boston Americans, certainly was a new mark in speedy printing.

PERFECT TEAM WORK

And in that half minute the "picture mats" had to be scorched from other mats in the first air delivery to the Boston Airport at East Boston, stamped and recorded and signed for were Assistant Postmaster W. G. Hurley, Acting Assistant Postmaster Charles L. Hammond, Assistant superintendent of Mails H. N. Hare and Albert B. Chase and Special Agent P. J. Mullaney of the Boston service.

A crew of clerks sorted the newspaper mail bag and the Boston American matrices, also stamped and delivered them on receipt. That mail time counting from the time the plane touched down was 7:09 p. m., daylight saving time, when the Boston American men started from the field at Jeffrey's Point, in the red auto of the deputy fire chief. The car was driven by the deputy's chauffeur, Michael E. Fallon, who proved himself a second Barney Oldfield.

With Deputy Chief Hall exclaiming over the dents in the body of his car, Fallon, with police escort, threaded through traffic, the way was cleared in front of the Boston American Summer street office. It was a hair-raising trip, but never hazardous with a man of Fallon's skill and nerve at the wheel.

The matrices were rushed from their wrappers and mailed to the stereotyping room. With all the chances apparently against them the seemingly impossible was accomplished and at the thirty-two minute mark the first mail plane from Washington was on the way. The newsboys were hastening up Summer street selling the picture extra and delivery trucks were starting to all dealers in Greater Boston.

COMMR. GLYNN AIDS

The historic importance of the funeral ceremonies in Washington were considered of sufficient public interest by Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn, to assign a car and chauffeur from the Fire Department to speed up delivery of the funeral pictures.

The management of the Boston American felt that the facilities of the Fire Department would obviate danger of accident and delay. Commissioner Glynn made a record trip to the field driven by his chauffeur, Fred Cook, but was obliged to leave on official business before the arrival of the mail plane.

EFFICIENCY KEYNOTE

The Boston American's scoop last night is exhausting the Washington resources in Washington. Not one funeral picture more ahead of all photographic plates meant time lost in developing and converting into cuts possible by the wonderful resources and mechanical efficiency of the Hearst service.

The Boston American is the only newspaper in New England which has the wire service of the Universal Service, International News Service, Cosmopolitan Service and the Associated Press.

With the use of these combined services, the Boston American was enabled to score some of the most noteworthy beats ever registered in the New England field. These exclusives were all the more significant in view of the fact that the Boston American is a comparatively small newspaper.

PEARSON SNAPPED.

Fred Pearson was snapped by Jack Sears, for the International News Reel Corporation, the only movie operator present, and by Jack Natoni, of the Boston American staff of photographers.

Pearson was caught in the act of handing over the mail bags to the most popular officials among whom stamped and recorded and signed for were Assistant Postmaster W. G. Hurley, Acting Assistant Postmaster Charles L. Hammond, Assistant superintendent of Mails H. N. Hare and Albert B. Chase and Special Agent P. J. Mullaney of the Boston service.

American officer. It required perfect team-work in which the postoffice authorities and the Boston Fire Department gave skilful cooperation.

A secret process played an important part in the achievement which proved a newspaper triumph. It was an event befitting the first mail delivery at Boston's new landing field. And it was the second big picture beat in connection with President Harding's memories scored by the Boston American in which Deputy Fire Commissioner Glynn figured prominently.

Dramatic incidents in the Naval's funeral ceremonies, snapped as he lay in state in the rotunda of the Capitol, by officers of Mr. Hearst's newspaper, the Washington Times, and were delivered by motor to the mail plane which left Bolling Field, Washington, at 4:30 daylight saving time. The takeoff was slightly behind schedule.

FAST TRAVELING

The plane, a two-motor de Haviland, equipped with a 400-horsepower Liberty motor and recently converted to the mail carrying service, was piloted by H. P. Pearson. In the forward cockpit was J. K. Wayland, "U. S. Mail 240" was inscribed in large letters on the plane which sped north at a speed that reached 120 miles an hour at times and seldom dropped under 100 miles.

The only stop was made at Hazlehurst Field, now Curtiss Field, Mineola, L. I., where matches for New York City were dropped. That landing was made at 6:40 p. m., daylight saving time. The plane was away again in five minutes. It was sighted soaring high over the South Shore at 8:36 and Pilot Pearson made a perfect landing at 7 p. m. The motor worked like a charm throughout the flight, which was made in four hours thirty-one minutes.

PICTURESQUE GROUP

Pilot Pearson and Wayland, his flying partner, were greeted by a picturesque group at Boston's airport. Four newly painted mail trucks, bedecked with flags and driven by chauffeurs in semi military rig automatics strapped to the left thighs, were drawn up close to the hangars.

A delegation of postal officials representing Postmaster Baker, were there to receive the first mail bags. Several of the pouches were packed with photographic plates

NOTABLE BEATS.

1—Announcement that President Harding was seriously ill from ptomaine poisoning a full day before another Boston newspaper awakened to the gravity of the President's condition.

2—Announcement of the President's death two full hours before another newspaper appeared on Boston's streets with the news.

3—Publication of photographs of the Harding funeral services in San Francisco 24 hours before another Boston newspaper received a single photograph.

4—Photographs of the Harding funeral train as it bore the mortal remains of the dead Executive across the continent between lines of mourners from Pacific to Potomac, 20 hours before another Boston newspaper printed a photograph.

5—Hourly bulletins broadcasted by radio while the President lay sick unto death in the Palace Hotel, San Francisco.

6—Publication last evening of the first striking scenes at the Nation's tributes to the late President at the Capital.

The exclusive photographs published on Tuesday and Wednesday were more graphic than columns of descriptive writing.

MARION FUNERAL SERVICE TO BE SIMPLE ONE

When the funeral train arrives here the coffin will be taken immediately to the home of the dead President's father, Dr. George T. Harding, Sr., in East Centre street. The trip from the station to the father's home will be made in a hearse, not on a military caisson as yesterday in Washington.

The body was taken into the front room, where it rested in state and where the thousands of people who knew the man intimately in life were permitted to view the remains.

The doors were thrown open at 2 p. m. and will remain open until 10 p. m.

On Friday visitors may come between the hours of 9 a. m. and 1 p. m. At 2 p. m. Friday the hearse will again call at the home and the remains of W. G. Harding will be taken to the Marion Cemetery, it is planned to hold the last services at the cemetery vault at 3 p. m.

Those services, as arranged, are and simple like those at the home of Marion's dead. Just relatives, close friends and a brief eulogy to one of close friends.

That's the way Marion and many "W. G."

A stately mausoleum in Marion cemetery will be the last resting place of President Harding, as loved of Marion's sons, it was decided here today.

VAULT TO HOLD BODY

Following funeral services here, the remains of the Chief Executive who claimed Marion as his home will be placed in a receiving vault until the monument has been erected.

This announcement, following receipt here of word from Dr. Carl Sawyer, son of General C. E. Sawyer, the late President's personal physician, who had a conference lasting several hours with Mrs. Harding.

Friday afternoon Rev. M. Landis, pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church of which President Harding was for many years a trustee, will read the funeral at Father Harding's home. On the march to the cemetery there will be no military display of any kind, it was announced.

Not even the famous "Black Horse Troop" which escorted the President at his inauguration, will be in the procession, nor will any other military or fraternal organization.

With the simplicity he so much loved, and not as the head of the mighty republican nation, will the most distinguished citizen of Marion be laid to rest.

Mrs. Harding desires the utmost simplicity in the services at Marion, she requested that all friends of the dead President come to the Harding home Thursday and Friday and view the body.

ONLY INTIMATES

Only members of the intimate party to make the trip to Alaska with President Harding were aboard the funeral train.

President Coolidge, members of the Cabinet and other high government officials as well as private citizens will attend the funeral services here will arrive tomorrow at 11 a. m. on an extra train from Washington.

In today's funeral procession from the station to the Harding home and in the last journey tomorrow from the home to the cemetery there will not be heard the tramping feet of soldiers no civil or other organizations will be in line. Only the family and intimate friends will directly follow the hearse.

Mrs. Harding's desire for a simple, private funeral for her husband, united today in the cancellation of plans for Ohio newspaper publishers, members of the Associated Press, in which Mr. Harding was an active worker, to march in the procession as a body.

TROOPS ON GUARD

Three thousand Ohio National Guard troops today patrolled the streets of Marion, keeping back the huge crowds of Ohioans and others from other States who came to pay their last respect to their dead chief.

Marion was crowded to overflowing this morning and other thousands were blocking the highways in close to the city. So great was [illegible] Ohio State Troopers along the main roads to prevent speeding and consequent injuries or loss of life of [illegible].

Business will practically be at a standstill in Marion today and tomorrow. The whole city plans to give itself up to deep mourning.

The Marion Star, the newspaper that until recently was owned and published by President Harding, will suspend publication tomorrow in order that its employes may attend the funeral services and pay their last respects to their chief.

All points of interest in connection with the life here of Mr. Harding, were being heavily guarded by State troops to safeguard them from the ravages of souvenir hunters.

AT FRONT PORCH

An especially heavy guard was placed around the old Harding home from which Mr. Harding, then a United States Senator, conducted his famous front porch campaign for the presidency.

When they arrive tomorrow, President Coolidge, Chief Justice Taft and the members of their parties will make their headquarters on board the special train that brought them and that will carry them back to Washington.

They will start on the return trip to the capital immediately following the brief services at the cemetery. Mrs. Harding will return to Washington on a train leaving Marion at 5 p. m. Friday.

Among other noted visitors who are expected to arrive this evening will be Henry Ford, Thomas Edison, Harvey S. Firestone and Bishop William F. Anderson, all close friends of Mr. Harding. Last Summer Mr. Harding spent several days camping with them.

Services Friday at Cemetery in Marion

Marion, O., Aug. 9.—The funeral services for President Harding to be conducted at the vault in Marion Cemetery Friday afternoon are as follows:

Hymn—"Lead, Kindly Light," by Trinity Baptist chorus choir.

Reading of the Scriptures by the Rev. George M. Landis, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church.

Prayer—The Rev. Dr. Jesse Swank, pastor of Marion Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church.

Hymn—"Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Benediction—The Rev. George M. Landis.

BODY MAY REST ON INDIAN MOUND

Marion, O., Aug. 9 (A.P.)—Eventually the body of Warren G. Harding may find a final resting place on the top of an old Indian mound just east of this city and overlooking the home where he lived so many years and where he made his famous front porch campaign.

Close personal friends of the late President have started a movement which may include the erection of a suitable mausoleum with funds to be derived from the sale of gold dollars—the same plan followed in obtaining funds for the memorial to President William McKinley at Niles, Ohio.

As soon as possible the plan will be submitted to Mrs. Harding.

The Indian mound lies just east of the cemetery where the President's body will be entombed Friday and is a beautiful grassy hill some 75 feet higher than the surrounding country. It is studded with many trees and is one of the most beautiful spots near Marion.

Cemetery authorities let it become known today that more than a year ago, E. K. Thier, a friend of Mr. Harding, had reserved an acre of ground in one of the most beautiful spots in the Marion Cemetery as a possible burial place for Mr. Harding. The site of the acre plot is near where President Harding's mother is buried.

ROYALTY TO PAY HARDING TRIBUTE

London, Aug. 9.—Canon Carnegie, who will conduct the memorial services for President Harding in Westminster Abbey tomorrow, stated that "Abide with Me" and "Lead Kindly Light," the President's favorite hymns, will be sung by Cantor Storr. S. H. Nicholson, the Abbey organist, will play Chopin's funeral march. The Duchess of York will accompany the Duke. They will represent the King and Queen at the services.

Duchess of York.

HARDING MEMORIALS IN SOMERVILLE

Memorial services for President Harding are scheduled for tomorrow in churches in all parts of Somerville. The first service will be at 10 o'clock at St. James Episcopal church, Clarendon Hill, in charge of the rector, Rev. Francis L. Best.

All the churches of West Somerville will join in a union service at 11 o'clock at West Somerville, Congressman Charles Underhill is slated as the principal speaker.

All the East Somerville churches will have a service at Grace Baptist church at four in the afternoon in charge of the Rev. William H. Dyas and at the same time there will be services in all the seven Catholic churches.

MEMORIAL AT NAVY YARD TOMORROW

Memorial exercises for President Harding will be held tomorrow at 11:45 at the Charlestown Navy Yard. All officers and enlisted men will gather on the lawn near the band stand. Rear Admiral Louis R. De Steiguer, commandant, will read the proclamation of the Secretary of the Navy, after which will come a prayer by the Rev. Arthur W. Stone, the chaplain. There will be one minute of silence and then will the firing of the national salute of 21 guns.

As the funeral train entered Marion County this morning all of the church bells of the city tolled. It was a sad welcome home and in severe contrast to the happy, noisy welcome accorded President Harding on his last visit home to attend the Marion centennial on July 4 a year ago.

HARDING TRAIN IGNORES KLAN TRIBUTE

Rochester, Pa., Aug. 9.—Silent figures, clad in teh raiment of the Ku Klux Klan and bearing a large cross of red carnations, paid tribute as the Harding funeral train passed through here this morning.

As the train moved slowly through the station one of the klansmen advanced with the cross in the hope that it would be taken aboard. There was no one on the platform or the funeral car, and the floral offering was not taken aboard.

As the train disappeared the klansman, holding the cross upright, stood at attention. They were whisked away in an automobile.

Thousands of persons from all parts of the Rochester district flanked the railroad right of way as the train passed.

Rain May Fall as Harding Is Buried

Columbus, O., Aug. 9.—Cloudy and possibly rainy weather may prevail during the funeral services for President Harding at Marion, tomorrow. The weather bureau today predicted that both tonight and tomorrow cloudy weather might be expected and that intermittent showers were likely tomorrow.

Cooler weather which has prevailed during the past twenty-four hours was expected to continue.

INTERNATIONAL PHOTO SCORES SCOOP

Never in the history of the news motion pictures has any news reel organization achieved the marvels that International News Reel achieved on the death and funeral of President Warren Gamaliel Harding. E. Carl Walker, staff cameraman for the International and member of the Harding official party, who had accompanied the President to Alaska and return, had photographed the removal of the casket from the Palace Hotel at San Francisco, and had left for Washington on the funeral train. On his arrival at Omaha this film was turned over to an International representative who dashed off in a fast automobile to a nearby aviation field, where a speedy airplane was waiting. This machine took off for Chicago at daybreak and delivered the films there at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, many hours ahead of it train.

At Chicago another airplane, piloted by Nimmo Black, a noted civilian flier, immediately "hopped off" for New York City, arriving in time enough for International to make up a special release to the New York theatres for the matinee on Tuesday.

ASK TRAFFIC SQUAD FOR SOMERVILLE

Responding to the protests of residents of Franklin street, Somerville, Alderman John Spiers will submit tonight to the aldermen an order calling for the creation of a police traffic squad in order that traffic officers may be assigned to duty on that street.

This thoroughfare is one of the main avenues leading to Revere Beach boulevard and traffic there reaches such proportions that on a Sunday there has been an average of more than 400 cars an hour passing a given point.

Six children and one woman were injured near the junction of Franklin and Oliver streets in a short space of time.

The Prison Remains
Careless Mrs. Vanderbilt

Female Buddha Gone

"Behold—Not him we knew!
This was the Prison Which his Soul looked Through."

THE "PRISON" from which President Harding escaped one week ago is traveling to Marion and will be buried tomorrow to rest in the ground with other thousands of millions of human beings that have gone back into the earth.

Men with solemn faces say, "Everybody speaks kindly of Warren G. Harding now. It would be better if there were less criticism of men while they are living."

That is not sound. The late President would say that what men want is such praise as they deserve after they are dead, but of all things, they want earnest, stern criticism while they live.

What the diamond cutter does for the rough stone criticism does for the character of men.

HERE'S A VERY short sermon for salesmen and others. The moral is: Make the best of everything. Even a calamity can be made useful in salesmanship.

Mrs. Wasserman, young lady, owner of an extremely successful dressmaking shop in New York, was on Broadway. She moved over to Madison avenue, one of the first to recognize that street. She appears among her many customers with a cold in her head.

"Don't," said her chief assistant. "Your cold will hurt business." Mrs. Wasserman replied: "Wait and see."

Each customer, as she sympathized with Mrs. Wasserman's heavy cold, was told, "Yes, Mrs. Vanderbilt coughed right in my face yesterday. Very thoughtless of her."

Each customer went away rejoicing to know that she was buying her clothes at a reasonable price, where Mrs. Vanderbilt bought hers.

A misfortune really is not a misfortune if you make the best of it. For that anecdote, thank young Joseph Schafner.

THE STATE OF SOUTH DAKOTA sells gasoline to the citizens and has cut the price to sixteen cents a gallon. Governor McMaster says gasoline can be profitably sold at nine price.

The best way, undoubtedly, to establish a fair price for gasoline, coal and some other necessities would be for the government to go into the business on a scale sufficient to get an idea of actual cost.

But the lower kinds of business government attempts, the better. Railroads, telephone and telegraph would suffice for the present.

PEKING announces the death of the female Buddha. You may never have heard of that distinguished lady, but she meant a great deal to the faithful of outer Mongolia.

She was as busy as politics as Lady Astor. The Russians did not like it, and according to the dispatch, their agents had the lady poisoned. Those Mongolian Buddhists will wonder how it happens that their all-powerful God allowed the lady representing him to be poisoned by "Red" Russians. But soon they will be pacified with some plausible answer that will save the face of their God. And the "Living Buddha" will get another wife.

EVERYBODY ASKS every body else, "What sort of man is Coolidge?" President Coolidge undoubtedly is asking himself, "What sort of man is Coolidge?"

No man knows how much he can carry until the load is put on his shoulders. Nobody would give more for an absolutely correct answer to the question, "What kind of man is Coolidge?" than President Coolidge.

One thing is sure, he is cautious, conservative. Those are reassuring qualities.

Mother of Gertrude Coughlin Incensed at Secret Marriage

Mrs. Patrick H. Coughlin, No. 22 Hopkins st., Cambridge, disowned her daughter, Gertrude Rose, twenty years old, when she learned her daughter had been married secretly to Richard Loud, son of Clarence W. Loud, who was tried and acquitted on the charge of murdering Patrolman James Preston of Wakefield.

Mrs. Coughlin, when informed of the marriage, which she had previously forbidden, ordered her daughter from her home and forbade her ever to return.

UPBRAIDS GIRL.

"You would rather believe others than your own mother," Mrs. Coughlin told her daughter, in the presence of a representative of the Boston American. "I have warned you against marrying Richard Loud many times, but you have had your own willful way. You and Richard can go tonight, and find a place for yourselves. I am through with you for ever."

The daughter hurriedly packed her things and left the parental roof to seek her husband.

"I love Richard. I married to give him up for no one else," she told the Boston American. "I have found that Richard Loud is the finest man who ever lived, and I shall stay with him to the end, no matter what happens."

DISOWNS DAUGHTER.

Said Mrs. Coughlin: "I am through with Richard and my daughter may do as she pleases. I am through with the girl for the rest of her life. She is no longer my daughter."

Loud is a repairman in the office of Mayor Peters at City Hall. He finds work easy to get in the Malden district. Before there the young couple lived a year ago Mrs. Loud expressed willingness to take any old position in the event of a change, should it become necessary in order to finance the young husband.

MISS MURIEL CROOKS HENDERSON

Miss Crooks, twenty-two years old, daughter of Mrs. Maude Lee of No. 318 Summer street, Lynn, left on a honeymoon trip to Halifax, leaving her husband, Alton W. Henderson of 500 Ash Western avenue, at home because he could not get a vacation. The wedding was performed by Rev. Walter W. Van Kirk at the Boston Street Methodist church. The newlyweds motored and after the ceremony went directly to their homes.

LINK BOOTLEGS' ISLAND WITH BOWER MURDER

Lawrence, Aug. 9.—Five suspects of the murder of Arthur Tacey, Methuen patrolman shot on the Lawrence-Lowell road ten days ago, led to the discovery of a bootleggers' island in the Merrimac River and may solve the crime.

The island, police believe, has been used as a depot by rum-runners from Canada. They last night brought in the suspects, but denied that they had been engaged in rum running. It is believed a delivery was on hand the night of the murder when the trooman, Bower, happened on the bootleggers' machine and was shot down as he was about to arrest occupants of the car. Whether or not police found supplies or came to the identity of the bootleggers will be made public.

Barney Banks, the Lowell chauffeur who had the police department running persons he accused of the murder, will be examined today by alienists. He is in the Lawrence jail.

His startling stories and equally startling denials, touching love affairs in jail, prompted orders to investigate the Essex district attorney to appoint alienists to examine him.

AGED VAUDEVILLE COMEDIAN DIES

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Thomas J. Farron, known to vaudeville audiences years ago as a member of the comedy team of Baker and Farron, died here. He was seventy-three years old. His death followed by only six months that of his partner, Peter Baker. They retired from the stage twenty years ago, after they had been made famous by their memorable "Chris and Lena."

SHOOTS AT COP; KILLS WIFE IN COURT

New York, Aug. 9.—In Washington Heights Police Court today Nathan Hirsch, a grocer, killed his wife and mortally wounded a policeman in the courtroom. Hirsch, who attempted to escape after the shooting, was himself shot dead by the policeman.

SOMERVILLE WOMAN ELECTED IN C. T. A. U.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 9.—The 53d annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America closed here with the selection of Atlantic City as place of next meeting the first week of August, 1924.

The following officers were elected: Spiritual director, Most Rev. James Keane, D.D., Dubuque, Iowa; president, Rev. John G. Boans, S. T. B., Pittsburgh, Pa.; first vice-president, Mrs. Richard H. Hughes, Philadelphia, Pa.; second vice-president, Mrs. Maurice Dunleen, Somerville, Mass.; third vice-president, Mrs. Mary B. Finan, Chicago, Ill.; treasurer, Rev. J. B. McCann, Easton, Pa.; general secretary, Mr. Thomas F. McCluskey, Danbury, Conn.

ARMY MAN JAILED FOR STEALING SUGAR

For the larceny of 800 pounds of sugar, after court-martial trial in the Fleet Corps Area, Private Robert Marczynski, 173rd Company C. A. C., was found guilty and sentenced to two years at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. Private Patrick Manning, National Army, unassigned, charged with desertion was found not guilty.

RIVAL DOCTORS TAKE SIDES IN DIABETES WAR

The famous diabetes war is on. Physicians throughout the country are rallying under two banners.

One banner carries the cryptic word "Insulin." The other bears the equally strange name, "Intervim."

The inscription upon that Insulin is the one and only reliable cure for diabetes. The Intervimites say that Insulin is all very well as far as it goes, but it doesn't go as far as Intervim.

Of course, Insulin came first.

AIM OF PHYSICIANS.

The theory of Intervim was first worked out by Dr. A. I. Ringer, but the credit for working the theory out is given to Dr. Max Kahn of New York.

The idea set forward is that of producing a fat which would not yield acetone bodies which are poisonous acids in the system of the diabetic sufferer. The disastrous thing about diabetes is the fact that fats, instead of being consumed naturally, are broken down into poisonous fatty acids in the system of the diabetic.

The problem on which both Drs. Ringer and Kahn worked was that of making a fat which would break down into harmless sugar-like acids instead of toxic ones. Such a fat has been found.

PRAISE FOR INTERVIM.

Dr. Ralph McAfee of Columbus, noted chemist, says:

"Practically every physician who has been using Intervim has practiced it very highly, and we believe it will be a great aid for Insulin. The use of the needle two or three times a day is the great drawback in Insulin cases. Besides that the dose must be carefully measured by the physician.

"A small overdose is dangerous. Insulin is a great discovery, indeed, but the misuse of it has caused about fifty deaths, while saving about 5,000 lives. If a food easily taken proves an efficient treatment for the disease, the patient will certainly prefer it."

BOY SCALDED: OVER PAIL OF WATER

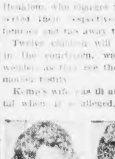
Charles Pelue, 7 years old, of No. 25 Hale street, West End, was seriously scalded when he fell over a pail of hot water while running across the kitchen of his home. The boy's screams were heard by a passerby who found him alone in the house. He was rushed to the Haymarket Relief Hospital where his name was placed on the danger list.

12 CHILDREN TO WITNESS TRIAL OF ELOPERS

Harry Kemp of Old Heath street, Jamaica Plain, father of five children, and Mrs. Helen Hoskins of No. 6 Wise street, Jamaica Plain, mother of seven, are to appear in Attorney Daniel Toohig's office on complaint of the woman's husband, Frances Hendon, who charges that they deserted their respective wives and children and ran away together.

Twelve children will probably be in the courtroom, watching with wonder as they see their father or mother testify.

Kemp's wife was ill at City Hospital when it is alleged, he left Ja-



Frances Hendon Mrs. H. Hendon made Plain in company with Mrs. Hoskins. Mrs. Kemp is now dead.

The four Kemp children were later found by agents of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, sleeping on dirty carpets in the unlighted home on Old Heath street.

Miss Alice Farquharson, sister of Mrs. Hoskins, is one of her strongest defenders. "My sister has been terribly imposed on by her husband," she said. "This judgment has caused him to stop at nothing to discredit her. He would even make a scene if she went out at night with women friends. He is one who says my sister loves Kemp."

In court Kemp will be charged with trespass, threatening bodily harm and alienating the affections of Mrs. Hoskins.

"I will forgive my wife if she will only come home and take care of my seven children," Hoskins declared.

FIREMAN INJURED IN SO. END RUNAWAY

Daniel Graham, 37 years old, of No. 36 Taber street, Roxbury, a fireman attached to Engine 29, of Brighton was badly hurt when he attempted to stop a runaway horse on Concord street.

As the horse, attached to a light express wagon, approached Washington street, Graham attempted to reach the bridle. He fell to the ground and suffered a dislocated right shoulder and many bruises.

JEALOUS OF HONOR PAID BY MASSACHUSETTS

THIRD INSTALMENT
By CHARLES G. POWER.

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 9.—The women of Vermont are jealous of Massachusetts. They say that the old Bay State has no right to claim President Coolidge as her own. If they will but admit that he is anything more than an adopted child of Massachusetts.

A number of Vermont women [illegible] Boston [illegible] on their way to [illegible] meeting or convention. In [illegible] state car was one who resented [illegible] the sister State.

"Of course, Massachusetts is going to claim Mr. Coolidge as its own President," said one.

"Yes, but she has no right to," declared another, "for he is a Vermont boy born and raised."

"We ought to pass resolutions and send them to him, or to the man who is a Barnum isn't, setting forth that we are proud of them as Vermonters," suggested another.

CLAIMS OF BAY STATE

This was too much for the Massachusetts woman. She could stand by none of this plot to belittle the glory of her own State.

"Pardon me," she said, "but I am a Massachusetts woman and the people of my State will not permit any other State to claim President Coolidge as its own. He is a Vermont boy, but he is a Massachusetts man. He was married and he became [illegible] Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts. Mr. State gave him his great [illegible] and put him on the road to the great honors he now enjoys. Massachusetts has a right to claim him as our own because we have the better right to do so."

And the argument went on and on, and not one was kept up for fifty [illegible]. At the end it was agreed [illegible] Coolidge has been [illegible] Massachusetts, but that he found room to his fame, but that Vermont has the prior claim.

HAS STANCH DEFENDERS

It is not safe to speak slightingly of Calvin Coolidge in public places in Vermont. Sitting in a smoking room of a train on the way from Boston to Montpelier I attempted to elucidate some views I had formed about Coolidge. I was speaking in a low voice, and I thought I was among friends, but I found myself in the midst of a heated discussion in which I was the storm center. Before I could get out of the room I had been called a liar and a few other names that I do not care to repeat.

The New Yorker was anxious to know how Coolidge stands on the question of prohibition. He was sure he would be the worst ever for any [illegible]. He was so positive about [illegible] that when we arrived at the Vermont line I was not [illegible] to [illegible] the conversation [illegible] to take it up [illegible] Montpelier.

BOSTON'S MOST CHARMING GIRL WILL BE NAMED TODAY

FIELD OF 25 FACE JUDGES

Winner to Represent Greater Boston at Atlantic City Pageant

The MOST CHARMING girl in Boston and vicinity will be known tonight.

The young woman who is selected by the judges will then begin preparing for next week's free trip to Atlantic City, with all expenses of self and chaperon paid by this newspaper.

At 7 o'clock the judges began their work of selecting the winner from a field of 25 young women who were chosen from the thousands who have been voting since the contest started. It was not a difficult task to name the winner.

The final meeting this afternoon took place in the artistic studios of John H. Gates, No. 230 Boylston street, Boston, and the 25 who were chosen in the preliminary selection was outlined to contestants to appear at the studio at 3 o'clock for final inspection. If any girl whose name appears in the list below fails to report with subscription lists she should go there just the same. She is

DOWN TO 25

Nearly two hours were consumed by the judges in selecting the 25 photographs from the hundreds received. They went over them three times in the presence of the CHARMING GIRL editor of the American. After John Harrington Gates narrowed the number to the stipulated 25.

The judges are John H. Hartt, photographer and painter; Walter Dean Hamilton, head of the department of drawing and painting at Massachusetts Normal Art school; Frederick R. Wallace, instructor in the same institution, and Frank H. Fraprie, editor of "American Photography."

Messrs. Hamilton and Wallace, it would be impossible to assemble a more suitable board of judges in this country.

SNAPSHOTS MADE

After selecting 25 photographs from the hundreds entered the judges issued a joint statement reading:

"The overelaborate, retouched photographs that were entered concealed the character of the girls' complexions. Many of the improperly lighted amateur snapshots, although small in size, gave a better idea of the grace and dignity of the contestants than the artificial poses with studio accessories and forced effects. These latter showed more of the personality of the photographers than of the contestants.

"Of the 25 photographs which we selected eight were snapshots. A distinct American type seems to be lacking. Some of the photographs today may not have fully represented the girls as they lacked coloring, and coloring is one of the essentials of charm and beauty. It was difficult to judge some of the girls because the photographs they sent were profiles.

"A word of advice to the twenty-five who appear before us for final selection—the less artificial coloring the better. We seek a girl who is naturally charming."

One of the interesting features of the preliminary choice of the judges was the selection of two Cambridge sisters, Doris Bowden, George and Phyllis Bowden, Gilmore. Phyllis is fifteen years old and attends Cambridge Latin school. She is a blonde. Doris is seventeen and has black hair and brown eyes. She is graduated from Cambridge Latin School and attends Mt. Ida school for girls. Both are named. Their mother, Mrs. Ann Bowden, is also a woman of unusual beauty and charm.

THE CONTESTANTS

The twenty-five girls whose photographs were chosen from the hundreds submitted and who appeared at The Gates Studio today for final inspection, are:

Antle, Edna, No. 13 Farrar street, Lynn; Burrows, Edna, No. 10 Washington street, Somerville; Black, Margaret, No. 107 Woodrow avenue, Dorchester; Babbitt, Mrs. Gertrude, No. 1731 Cambridge street, Cambridge; Bleakney, Marion, Beals street, North Weymouth; Buccos, Martha F., No. 343 Hamden street, Chicopee; Colebourne, Doris, No. 60 Terrace avenue, Winthrop; Cathcart, Florence, No. 125 Willis avenue, Medford; Cronin, Margaret M., No. 154 Mt. Vernon street, Malden; Davis, Ora C., No. 88 Pearl street, Cambridge; Donnelly, Mary, No. 21 Leverett street, Brookline; Fox, Dorothy E., No. 15 Longley road, Brighton; Flynn, Mae L., No. 25 Bayswater street, East Boston; George, Doris Bowden, No. 34 Linnaean street, Cambridge; George, Phyllis Bowden, No. 34 Linnaean street, Cambridge; Harrington, Edith, No. 217 Tremont street, Newton; Krauth, Harriet, No. 15 Wagner street, West Somerville; Mussels, Fabiola, No. 40 Phebe avenue, Lowell; McDermott, Ruth, No. 1274 Dudley street, Roxbury; McWhinnie, Laura, No. 29 Lafayette street, Wakefield; Nickell, Gertrude, Parker House, Boston; Ryder, Evelyn, Lee Hotel, Dover; Sirois, Jeanette E., No. 2 Hodges Court, Salem; Tetlesley, Mona, No. 501 Summer street, East Boston; Yaffe, Dorothy, No. 81 Fayston street, Boston.

Young Men Advised to Judge Girls by Their Feet

New York, Aug. 9—Feminine ankles live in the feet, rather than features, Dr. F. E. Hayhurst, retiring president, declared in the National Association of Chiropodists, "and if every young man who proposes to the girl of his heart would demand a photograph of her arches in place of a portrait of her head there would be fall of happy marriages.

"The sensible girl wears a sensible shoe and has healthy, normal feet and feet well cared for."

EX-GOVERNOR BEECKMAN TO WED DIVORCEE

Newport, R. I., Aug. 9—R. Livingston Beekman, former governor of Rhode Island, will marry Mrs. Edna Morrison Hopkins in New York tomorrow, it was learned today in this city. The wedding will be the culmination of the Harvard sweetheart romance of the former Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins.

Mrs. Beekman is the daughter of the late Elliott Anderson of New York. She is 29 years old. Her husband is 31 years old.

R. Livingston Beekman

The governor has not recently been in the limelight. He resigned from the governorship to marry Miss Edna Morrison Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Anderson of New York last June. She has a daughter, Miss Edna Hopkins, 15 years old.

FOOD QUERY DEPARTMENT

YOUR FOOD PURCHASING DIFFICULTIES SOLVED

A THURSDAY FEATURE

Are you at a loss as to where you can secure some particular brand or kind of foodstuffs? If so, write the Boston American Food Query Editor. We will answer your inquiry in these columns as quickly as possible.

Food Query Editor:

I just moved to Boston from Providence. I would like to know where I can secure the very popular bacon and hams known there as Sperry & Barnes. I believe these goods are put up in Connecticut somewhere. Could I secure same in Boston?

MRS. J. B. M.

Chelsea, Mass.

Sperry & Barnes goods are put up in New Haven, Ct., and we know of only one place in Boston where you can secure their hams and bacon and that is Wrayton-Thurston Company, No. 22 New Faneuil Hall Market.

Food Query Editor:

Where can I buy a marmalade that contains grapefruit. I do not want some with lemon in it. I bought some quite a while ago in the market, but I do not remember where I purchased same. Thanking you very much.

MRS. R. B. D.

Allerton, Mass.

You can purchase Dorson brand of orange grapefruit marmalade at any of the Arthur E. Dore stores. This is about the only place in the market that we can think of that you might have purchased this marmalade before.

Food Query Editor:

I am very fussy about the olive oil I use and particularly fond of a French oil. I am just running out of the stock I had on hand. A friend of mine secured it for me in New York city. It is known as "Lalance Brand," and it comes put up in gallon tins. I wonder if it is possible to buy same. Thanking you in advance.

MRS. R. C. Y.

Cambridge, Mass.

You can secure Lalance brand of French olive oil put up in gallon cans at Strong, Marston & Co., No. 89-A North street, or John Gilbert, Jr., Company.

Food Query Editor:

Please tell me through your valuable column if I can secure Sunbeam Mayonnaise in Boston.

MRS. R. B. W.

Roxbury, Mass.

You can purchase Sunbeam brand mayonnaise, put up by the Austin, Nichols & Co., Inc., New York, at any of the Mahoson stores.

Food Query Editor:

Have you ever heard of the boneless codfish by the name of Norwood brand? It comes put up in a one-pound wooden box. It is really a lovely piece of fish, always white and delicious.

MRS. W. F. G.

Newton, Mass.

You can buy the Norwood brand codfish, put up in one pound net weight wooden boxes, in any of the Arthur E. Dore stores. We understand these people handle practically the entire output of this brand of codfish in this territory.

Food Query Editor:

Is there such a thing as canned mutton? If so I would appreciate knowing how it is packed. How one can serve it, and for what purpose it can be used for? Thanking you in advance for the above information, I remain,

MRS. R. D. H.

Somerville, Mass.

There is a roast mutton put up in a twelve-ounce can that is partboiled and steam roasted. The brand name is "Council," and is put up by the Indian Packing Corp., at Green Bay, Wis. This mutton may be sliced cold, garnished and served, or can be used for sandwich purposes. It would be excellent for picnics, parties, luncheons, etc.

Food Query Editor:

I have been told that the Curtice Bros. people, who put up Blue Label Ketchup, also put up some wonderful peaches and pears in cans. If this is so, I have never been able to locate a store that carries it. Everybody has their Blue Label Ketchup but nobody seems to know about their canned goods. Could you help me in this matter?

MRS. W. D. B.

Watertown, Mass.

Curtice Bros., of Rochester, N. Y., put up a complete line of very fancy canned goods in addition to their Blue Label Ketchup. You can secure the above canned goods at Upham's Corner Market, Dorchester; Manhattan Market, Cambridge, or B. F. Arnold, Worcester. We personally know these goods are of the finest quality.

BRITAIN SCOFFS AT SPEECH OF CUNO

London, Aug. 9 (A.P.)—Chancellor Cuno's speech in the Reichstag seemingly has had little effect in England, where the dominant opinion expressed by those in authority is that the importance of German Government utterances is approaching the vanishing point so far as the actual effects are concerned. The most serious part of the speech was the chancellor's admission that the German Government had nothing to expect from Britain in the way of sympathy or assistance.

It is hoped this will modify the French, who have been inspiring British policy as serving only to strengthen Germany's resistance in the Ruhr and elsewhere.

The cabinet met again today and continued its efforts to formulate an answer to the French and Belgian notes which contained a virtual rejection of the British draft note to Germany.

Cuno Disconcerted When Called "Traitor"

Berlin, Aug. 9 (A.P.)—Chancellor Cuno's address to the Reichstag, in which he declared passive resistance in the Ruhr and Rhineland would continue to be supported by the nation, has been received as the most depressing statement yet made to the national legislature by the present government.

The chancellor was visibly disconcerted by the boisterous heckling of the Communist members who hailed him as "traitor," "swindler" and "president of the Stinnes Company."

Asserting that the British draft reply to the last German reparation note contained much that was impossible of fulfillment, Herr Cuno said if appeared England had gone extraordinarily far in her concessions to the French viewpoint.

The chancellor reiterated that Germany could not and would not "abandon German land and betray fellow countrymen."

Civil war or disorder could have no place in Germany at the present time, the chancellor declared, adding that such outbreaks would be suppressed by the government.

All the shops in Berlin, with the exception of the provision stores, closed today as a protest against the refusal of the authorities to allow prices to be fixed on a gold basis.

DAUGHERTY OUT WITHIN 30 DAYS

Attorney General Says Daugherty Will Resign.

Washington, Aug. 9.—Attorney General Daugherty was closeted with President Coolidge for two hours and 10 minutes at the White House today and left Washington for his home in Ohio immediately afterward. He refused to make any statement concerning the matters discussed.

The distinct impression prevailed among the Washington correspondents who had been friends that he intends to withdraw from the cabinet within the next few days, and his visit to the President was to lay his plans before him.

SOUTH END MAN IS RUN DOWN BY AUTO

Timothy Shoer, forty-six years old, of No. 29 East Concord street, South End, was struck by an automobile operated by William E. Sergeant of No. 23 Kenwood Road, Everett, as he was crossing Washington street at Cobb Street, South End. He was taken to the City Hospital suffering cuts and bruises.

REID'S DEATH LAID TO DOCTOR BY WIDOW

By JO SWERLING

At the peak of his successful career, in the midst of an unmarred production, Wallace Reid was stricken, as with a knife, by a developed pneumonia of a mild sort.

Wallace went to a doctor. He was given some morphine.

Up to that time he had never known what any narcotic was.

The doctor that gave Reid the first dose of the drug continued to feed the appetite that was restless for the opium. For two years he sold drugs to Wallie.

When Wallie died as the result of drug addiction, nothing was done to the doctor.

DOPE MISCALLED

"The real dope manufacturers, who sell drugs to persons who do not need them, from a medical viewpoint, were classed officially by Deputy Daugherty, in his testimony of the drug evil, 'a large part of the drug traffic would be broken up.'

"What there been proper supervision of the physicians, the band might today be active and in the best of health.

"Doping is criminal medicine as called today by drug dopers under the new drug law. They look upon and treat all drug users 'dope fiends.' They do not realize that this is medical practice and also results, unless and legal.

COCAINE VICIOUS

"Dope is, in actuality, another name, in other words and the opium derivatives are to produce by morphine, cocaine and heroin, which we may classify as poisons. But the effects and results derived are and result of cocaine, as well as the motives for taking it, are very different from those connected with opiates.

"The great majority of cocaine addicts are criminal deliberately and with no good cause to excuse it." No one does not constitute a real addiction. It can be discontinued without undue or cured suffering.

"It produces over stimulation for a short period only. Its use is rapidly destructive to mind and muscles. Habitual cocaine takes away control, to the undeveloped. It excites and incites its users to crime. Opposed are the habits.

MOTIVES DIFFER.

"It requires quite to enter it is not because of the fact that the addict is under their influence, but because it is easy to obtain. Many of them—for time he will experience a new of them.

"These statements must not be considered as a defense of opiates.

"But it the public understand the essential difference between cocaine and opium, it would be a great help in the fight against both evils."

(Mrs. Reid continues her talk on the drug evil in Saturday's Boston American. Watch for it.)

U. S. MAIL TRUCK PLUNGES INTO SEA AT LYNN

A United States mail truck of the Lynn mail office, heavily loaded with parcels, dashed down the steep incline at Lover's Leap, Lynn, and plunged over a twenty-five foot sea wall into the ocean.

Mail Messengers Harold Mellen, No. 1 Pinehurst place, Lynn, driver of the truck, was delivering a parcel to the home of Miss Daniel Gates, a prominent society woman of No. 99 Ocean Drive, when the machine began to move. Mellen jumped and the truck went over the wall, down into the twenty-five foot ocean, but the truck remained afloat. The truck continued along Ocean boulevard and shivered into bits on the pavement. Mellen was rescued by derricks and taken for repairs. Broad daylight and in plain view of It is believed none of the mail was the enemy, made six trips to the foot section, but most of the parcels crept off a hill to rescue wounded were destroyed by water. buddies.

PIER OFFICIAL SAW ASSAULT ON BUTLER

Narragansett Pier, Aug. 9—Herbert Parker, assistant of the Town Council, testimony he alleged assault of John Butler, and two other men, Percy former butler, John Mayerhofer, which took place recently in front of the Casino Theatre, was corroborated.

Attorney Gamer, as president of the Town Council, presided at the police department, in which Butler was charged with carrying concealed weapons. Butler, Percy and Mayerhofer were fined $100 each on the latter charge and $50 each on the former two charges. Butler appealed the decision and threatened him with death, the Americans a day or two afterward, by an employe, de clared.

Other witnesses of the affair, spectators said, were Sir Frederman, head of the Provincial Trust Company, and three men in the secret service.

The police it was learned, had received previous to the affair, information that Butler was assaulted and planned to assassinate him on the sea wall when he should leave the hotel to go to the casino. A patrolman was detailed to the scene to prevent the row, it is said.

VET CAPTURED ON ISLAND LOVE NEST

Providence, R. I. Aug. 9—Peter J. Finley, shell-shocked war veteran, who escaped from the Butler Hospital recently and with a young married nurse and her younger brother pitched camp on Pons Island in the bay off Warren, was captured after Warren police charged the camp in the face of a shotgun wielded by the veteran.

Before he was captured the police say Finley tried to kill Mrs. Irene Blanchard, his former nurse who had cared for him in the hospital. She thrust aside the barrel and the shot went wild.

After the trio went on the island to live, all went well until Eugene Blanchard, of Central Village, Conn., heard of his wife's whereabouts. When he approached the camp, however, Finley's shotgun warned him off.

Blanchard returned to Warren and sought police aid.

Captain Hill entered the tent, grappled with Finley and succeeded in taking the gun from him. The veteran was returned to Butler Hospital. Mrs. Blanchard returned to the city with her husband.

COOLIDGE REWARDS HOMAGE OF HERO

Washington, Aug. 9—President Coolidge today rewarded a fighting sailor's loyalty to his fallen commander in chief.

The fighting man was Manuel A. Donadieu of Haverstraw, N. Y., a Congressional Medal of Honor man, and until recently a sergeant in the 166th Infantry. The reward was an unexpected opportunity to attend the funeral services at Marion as the guest of the new President.

Donadieu had some pinching to find the train fare, but it was found, and he marched from the White House to the Capitol behind the body of the dead commander. Donadieu didn't think anybody knew about his presence—or need.

Comrades testify that never a day passed that Donadieu didn't run down the spine of Secretary Lindbergh's S. S. Georges road, and, in and taken for repairs. broad daylight and in plain view of It is believed none of the mail was the enemy, made six trips to the foot section, but most of the parcels crept off a hill to rescue wounded were destroyed by water. buddies.

Lynn Dry Raiders Threatened With Pistols

'KU KLUX' RAID PROVES HOAX OF THREE GIRLS

MRS. GRACE HOSMER

The Wayland camp owner, pictured in bell Klan and bathing costume, tells how other campers were scared. Three hooded figures, strange lights and bell ringing star the neighbors. The latter include Joseph Kelroe (insert at top, of Ea st Milton, and Francis McAdams (insert bottom), of Dorchester.

Wayland, Aug. 9.—Speaking of ghosts, all is not Ku Klux Klan that says: "Ku-ku-ku!"

In the dead of night, clad in the traditional sheet and pillow-slip, and with all the accoutrements of the Klan, three venturesome girls, properly chaperoned, terrorized as many men in the Summer camp colony here.

A law abiding hoof awakened one of the male campers. Cautiously peeping from his shelter, he saw a pale blue light flash the signal for the raid. The lights flickered through the woods. An old Civil War sabre rattling in its scabbard. Hooded figures appeared and bell rang.

LIVE TO TELL TALE.

The raiders live to tell the story because there were no firearms in the camp. The story they tell, as related by Mrs. Grace Hosmer, owner of summer camps and bungalows, is this:

"Florence 'Chick' Hendricks (86the street business girl and summer camper) and Isabelle Bell Gray (also from State street) were enjoying a pleasant evening at 'Takeiteasy,' their camp here, when 'Joe' Kehoe (of East Milton, Francis McAdams, (Clarkson street, Dorchester) and George Conway (also of Clarkson street, Dorchester), dropped in for a chat. I was there with the girls, and so was Ed, my husband.

"After they left, I called the girls together and suggested we give the boys a scare.

"We put on bathing suits (more freedom, you know) and rigged ourselves up in sheets and pillow-slips to look like Klansmen.

"We ransacked the cottage, and found an old saber, a burlap bag, a pile of straw, an old cow bell, a small dinner-bell, a ball of twine, and a cigarette lighter.

EXCELLENT DUMMY.

"The bag and the straw made an excellent dummy, the bells made noise, and the cigarette lighter made a tiny blue flame. We proceeded.

"Chick approached the boys' camp, making low moaning noises. George awakened. Then we all approached the camp. We fixed the bells near the bungalow, and rigged them up with twine so they could be rung from a distance.

"Chick snapped the cigarette lighter. We rang both bells at once, then lighted some candles we had found in our cottage.

"One of the boys stepped out of the bungalow and whispered, 'It's the Ku Klux Klan!' Somebody else groaned, this is terrible.' Then the boys saw one of the girls in her sheet and pillow slip, one shouted, 'give me the gun and I'll fix them.'

"That was enough for us. We took to our heels. As we ran, we could hear the boys yelling 'blue murder.'

"The boys, convinced they witnessed a genuine Ku Klux Klan raid, obtained a gun from Mr. Hosmer, searched the woods, and in the morning reported the incident to the State constabularly at Framingham.

3 SUSPECTS ARE NABBED IN CHASE

Trio Accused of Rum-Running; $10,500 Cargo of Alcohol Captured

Lynn police, headed by Sergeant James Murckian, arrested three men on charge of rum-running and confiscated 1,500 gallons of alcohol, valued at $10,500, after an exciting chase of more than two miles on Western avenue, Lynn.

Although the arresting officers were threatened with guns, and were forced to wreck the automobile in capturing the liquor truck, the arrests were made without any shooting.

Acting on a tip that a large quantity of alcohol was to be transported from a Lynn garage to Boston, by way of Western avenue, Sergeant Murkian and four patrolmen, in a police automobile, started out.

RACE TWO MILES.

After driving at high speed for more than two miles, the police overtook the truck. The driver refused to halt when the police drew alongside.

Patrolman Charles Burrill, driving the police car, drew ahead of the truck and stopped his car directly in the path of the speeding truck. In the collision which followed, two patrolmen were thrown from the police car. They were not injured.

Without hesitation, the policemen rushed the truck, and demanded immediate surrender. Guns flashed in the truck.

"If you don't drop those guns, you'll never breathe again," Sergt. Muckian shouted. The guns were dropped.

THREE IN TRUCK.

Three men in the truck, who gave their names as Alfred Durso, Stephen Scarcegin and Guiseppi Mastilles, all of Brooklyn, N. Y. were arrested, and booked on charges of illegally transporting liquor and of having liquor in their possession.

The truck was found to contain 1,500 gallon cans of a high grade of grain alcohol, valued at $7 a gallon.

After taking the rum runners to police headquarters, Sergeant Muckian and his men went to a garage on Tremont street, Lynn, where they found additional gallons of alcohol of the same grade and in the same type of container.

SEEK MORE LIQUOR.

Police declare the alcohol in both seizures was the property of the same person or group of persons. They expect to find additional supplies of alcohol, owned by the same liquor operatives, within a few hours.

2 ARRESTS IN $12,000 SEIZURE

Dry Agents Capture Two Trucks Loaded With Grain Alcohol in Dorchester

One of the biggest seizures by Boston dry agents in months was made today when two trucks, loaded with 2,000 cases of grain alcohol, valued at $12,000, were nabbed in Dorchester avenue, Dorchester.

The drivers of the trucks, John White, No. 1 Winter street, and Henry A Kenneally aged thirty, No 16 Ramsey street, Dorchester, were held and were to be arraigned in court today.

Other arrests are expected to follow.

Both drivers declared they were employed by the A. J. Elliott Motor Transportation Company, Field's Corner, Dorchester, and were taking the alcohol to that company's garage.

The alcohol is believed to be from one of two large ships lying just off the Dorchester limit of Boston Harbor. One of these is known to have 4,000 cases aboard and the other as much or more.

Agents from Divisional Chief Charles J. Smith's office, patrolling the wharfs and piers, saw the cases being loaded into the trucks near the Army Base and trailed them in autos.

A man who directed the unloading from a big motor boat and who rode on White's truck, made his escape.

Both drivers, in statements to dry agents, said they were directed to go to a point in front of the Americus Social club, Howard Wharf, and to meet there three men and show them where to get the goods.

They say they were then told to drive to the Dorchester avenue garage. The loads were covered with canvas when the trucks were loaded.

Alcohol From Acorns

IT has recently been stated that alcohol can be made from acorns. When shelled they contain about 10 per cent of starch, which can be readily converted into alcohol. The alcohol, it is suggested, can then be used as fuel.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

"WE were all so intent on our own woes, scares and thoughts that no one had heard the doorbell. Not suddenly as we had a presence. And yet no one had heard me enter. I knew that Ralph Lacey had overheard some part of what was being said.

"Good evening," he said stiffly, looking into the room. He turned to me as if to be certain enough to see and took both my hands in his.

"I've just returned," he cried. "I learned of the news. What has come to all of you? Is there a way to help. Let me do anything I possibly can. I need it—we all need it. Now, has I never—"

Moment's Pause

There was a moment's pause, during which Ralph must have realized he offer his hand. Then he Joseph, then to Jim and last to Neal. He had come to the conclusion but that something was distressed his mind into a far different path from what had been intended. Jim frowned and was thought to by question.

"Lacey, you must have heard what we were saying."

"Some of it," answered Ralph gravely. "I'm sorry, but my intention to come really was to see you. I didn't know that you were in trouble. I've been away for a few days, and my business kept me in town. Tonight I was driving home when I met Neal Halsey. He told me that you were in trouble and that I could help you. I've come to do all I can. Please tell me what it is."

Neal Halsey's attempt to speak I knew was to prevent it. I was going to turn him off, but for once I found myself almost repelled by the sincerity of Ralph's offer. All during the evening I had found a refuge in silence. The details of the plan for these affairs I left to Neal. Something had occurred to me in the operation of some one I loved. There were quickened to sympathy with Neal. And Ralph Lacey's touch had not been as it ever to me. But at first I wondered why he couldn't be on the wrong side of the fence. I couldn't ask my father to help me.

I was glad when the evening ended—glad when I could shut my face from the book and away suddenly for the brother I would have loved and trusted with the whole world against him.

Jim Is Concerned

We had an early breakfast next morning at Jim's and all started for Tompkins's office long before the hour when the second article was to expire. But Jim was already there. He and I were in the cab. I had a nervous feeling that we were making a needed ride for of giving to Ralph Lacey. I knew that he got the $5,000 out of the safe in question almost as well into his pocket. I thought of the check for all ready to sign. I began to feel ashamed. The feeling grew when the entire group reported at the bank. Jim was there, and my nervousness had increased the time. Tompkins's office.

"You are doing, I need a quiet place," I laughed with nervousness.

"I am sure we can," answered Jim. "Ralph Lacey is waiting in my office. He says he is willing to wait. Neal's there also, I suppose."

"I know what I've answered. "I know all the world what's going on. Ralph loyally will never make me into the Neal Halsey's all right. And he'll come home to prove it."

For a moment after Ralph Lacey had left the room there was absolute silence in our living room. Then Jim, his eyes on my flushed face and dilated pupils, said quietly:

"You've struck a sensational note, and made Lacey at Anne. She's not almost ready to cook with him outside. Well—go to bed—I'll be able to prove something yet. The rest of us are going to have breakfast. Come on, the shower—the missing story unwound."

Commuter's Journey's End

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

"JOURNEYS end in lovers meeting," so poetry declares. Indeed and the modern myriad, alias the motion picture and the cartoonist—as these old "Journey's end" cards have quite enough in the meeting of lovers. Three lovers he him and me over for them.

There are pretty sights to see along the railway rails that the commuter travels homeward, "reckless of bright water winding alongside, glimpses of homes like flowers in a bouquet—little modern cottages with red and green roofs, patches of woodland, cool and green, and the banks of roses that the railroad plants, pink and red and white. But the prettiest of all is the little one you see waiting at almost every station for a hundred miles toward Canada.

There are those waiting, eager, watchful people in front a girl, some times you wouldn't call her one, but her complexion does—a baby with little round wrinkle bonnet—and a well-fed pup of no particular breed. And just in the stream of men folks that alight at the tiny station and scatter toward village streets and country roads, their eyes rest on one plain citizen in a straw hat with a dog under each arm—in one baby in each arm, then on how that the commuter's journey ends in a lovers' meeting.

ABOUT YOUR BEAUTY

By Maria Jeritza,
The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

EVERY woman under the sun loves beauty and wishes to be exceptionally individually her dressed and all the details of her surroundings. In some women this desire is asleep and only stirs faintly now and then, while in others it is a guiding passion.

Neither old age nor ugliness is a crime, though many people seem to express the contrary.

Youth is a gift so beautiful that at first thought it seems useless to speak of keeping it. But beauty in its proper meaning implies the care that the profitless that accompanies early years. And even the great those, unless it is being built upon the foundation of character and wisdom soon passes.

Content yourself with the material you try to perfect the material and all you can do is to express the perfection of nature. Be simple and unassuming in your manner, your daily regime, your appearance. Live according to simple, natural rules of health—we all know them well. Sleep your full nine hours, bathe scrupulous ly, eat plenty of simple food, get plenty of sunshine and fresh air and exercise. Then you'll not need cover or lipstick to improve your appearance.

But if you do use cosmetics, let your art be unobtrusive. Don't overdo it—let the natural beauty of your complexion and your features show through. Use an astringent and cream, and in putting on powder and rouge. You will find that it brings nearly all your guidelines into play. To apply it evenly and with naturalness is the flower of beauty.

SECRETS OF HEALTH AND SUCCESS

A LITTLE STORY ABOUT RHEUMATISM

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association

"DOCTOR, I have rheumatism," said the retired but highly intelligent and very observant man who came limping into my office one day.

Dr. Reed.

"Of course you haven't. There isn't any such thing. We've abolished it.

"A bilious attack. What's that? I've got lumbago in my ankle and foot." Why, I was walking with this cane and really thinking about using a pair of crutches. Tell me that!"

"Oh, that's just a local effect of a poisoned blood stream."

"I tell you it's rheumatism."

"Then suppose you sit down and tell me all about it."

He told me the story of a good liver, a real bon vivant, who enjoyed the luxuries of the table, including dinners and suppers and things that had been placed in the cellar several years and in a refrigeration of a long, dry spell. His habits were essentially sedentary. He always rode in his automobile—never walked. He was carrying the burden of a large business that was scattered well over two continents and that imposed an enormous burden on his imagination.

"I work hard," he said. "I've got to get up to tell things I like—things that are really stimulating—things like Creole dishes, Mexican dishes, curries and the like. No harm in them, is there?"

"No, not particularly, except that they so stimulate your appetite that you eat more than any civilized stomach can digest many times any civilized intestines can assume. The stomach undergoes fermentation—just like them and rots. Of course you then absorb the products of the putrefactive process. Pleasant thought, isn't it?"

"Yes, very unpleasant was the rather indignant reply. "But does that explain my rheumatism?"

"Possibly—in part. But let me look into your mouth."

"Mouth! I tell you it's my foot that's the matter with me!"

"Well, if it's your foot, let me see your mouth. People who think they know it all sometimes get their foot in their mouth!"

He quowered a little as he submitted. His breath struck me with a violence suggestive of an assault with an attempt to bathe. The edges of his gums were raw and ulcerated, a rich, creamy pus. His bowels were moved with a rich, creamy pus. Three gold crowns and a most artistic piece of bridgework were each dripping with a rich, creamy pus. His mouth and throat had some parts covered into a spongy tubercle which is but another name for a pus factory.

"There's your rheumatism," I explained. "Now listen to me. The germs from your mouth and throat have infected your stomach, more particularly your intestines. You keep feeding them there with the rotten excess of your food. You are absorbing germs and poisons from your teeth, your tonsils and your colon. These germs and poisons have settled out in your feet for arthritis because, for some reason, your feet has offered them the least resistance. What have you got to do about it?"

"First, as soon as you get home," the refitted gentleman was a traveling man, "you see your dentist. I will write to him. He will doubtless tell you to have an X-ray of your jaws and teeth. Some more rotten teeth you really have. Then have them pulled. Take out that gold in the crowns in the jaw. It will help you to pay my fee. Then have your tonsils taken out. Your colon will attend to itself.

"Yes—no, no, I forgot! About those sauces—Creoles, Mexicans, curries and the like. Do you like to eat them?"

"Why, yes, particularly, except that they so stimulate your appetite that you eat more than any civilized stomach can digest many times any civilized intestines can assume. Year's Best Selling Novel Reveals Mysterious Return of Youth and Beauty to Old Woman

Her eyes looked like a gray landscape, illumined by distant flashes of lightning

START THIS BEST-SELLER HERE TODAY

A young and beautiful woman creates a sensation at a first night in New York by rising in her seat at the theatre and coolly surveying the audience through her glasses, after the European fashion. Clavering and his friend, Dinwiddie, are immediately interested, and the latter receives a shock, declaring that she is the image of a former society belle, Mary Ogden, though much younger than she should be at that time. He thinks she may be a daughter. Clavering follows Mary home from the theatre and aids her to get into the house as she has lost her key. She invites him in and tells him she is Countess Josef Zattiany. He nearly guesses her secret. He asks her to marry him. Clavering invites her to dinner at Sherry's and the opera.

READ ON. THE THRILLS COME FAST

CLAVERING had managed to interest her because he had no rival, and he was young and his mind was in tune with hers. That alone, no doubt, was the secret of her imaginary flight in his direction. For the first time in his life he felt a sense of inferiority, and for the moment he made no attempt to shake it off. He was in the depths of despair. He did not even light a cigarette.

He could hear a group of young men discussing her . . . as one of their own kind . . . with no lack of respect . . . some new friend of Mrs. Oglethorpe's—they were too young to remember Mary Ogden.

She would have many "knights" on the morrow . . . he fell on the far side of a rapidly widening gulf . . . and he had once sought to dig a gulf! Disapproved! Questioned! Tried to forget her! He wished he had abducted her.

A bell rang. The men moved toward the foyer. In a few moments he followed. The attendant opened the Oglethorpe door and as he entered the anteroom he saw that the box was still filled with men. They had evidently taken root. He was possessed with a dull anger, and as it spread outward his sense of inferiority took flight. He'd rout them all, damn them.

After all he had more brains than any man in the house and his manners could be as good and as bad as their own. Moreover, he was probably more strongly endowed in other ways than the youngest of them. The wise thing for him to do was to let her find it out the next time they were alone.

But it was some time before he saw her once again, and meanwhile many things happened.

She took Mr. Dinwiddie home in her car for supper, Clavering following with Osborne in a taxi, and as the abundant repast was spread in the dining-room it was noted that she had gone to the opera with the intention of bringing back willing guests.

He was not jealous of Dinwiddie or Osborne (although he took from one of the latter's brow was sufficient evidence of a deeply personal resentment), and although he did not think Madame Zattiany a meaning glance, might indeed have set at her board for the first time, he knew that he had never made a better impression. Her eyes, which had been heavy and troubled as they took their seats at the table, and as old as eyes could be in that perfect setting, began to look like a gray landscape illumined by distant flashes of lightning. Before long they were full of life and response, and laughter. And wider . . .

She knew that both Dinwiddie and Osborne subscribed to the omnibus box and no doubt if they had cared to pay its exorbitant rental they, or one of them, or one of the vital youth in her entourage, would have engaged it long ago. Possibly Osborne had done so, and had been disappointed. Possibly he had not. Madame Zattiany, as well knew, appreciated herself. Without nothing to feed them, deprived of opera, that she did not intend to see him alone again until she had made up her royal mind.

He gnawed his tooth, but he was master of himself again and had no intention to make the mistake of [illegible] He felt as if face [illegible] paying about the head . . . cut words and alternately [illegible] and bitter bedevilment . . . miserable in words and tortured themselves, green in the moon. But when he opened his eyes and saw a letter in her handwriting, and suddenly delivered by a servant, it was unexpected, like most events and his faith wavered. He was certain that. This time he made no attempt at the flame of self-confidence he opened it at once. When he saw that it began with "Dear Mr. Clavering" he drew a longer breath.

Not Until Saturday

"I am not going to see you until Saturday," it read, "when I hope you will take me to Miss Ingram's party. Meanwhile I shall ask you not to see Mr. Dinwiddie or any one else likely to discuss me. I shall not care to stay long at the party, and if you will return here with me I will tell you my story as much as it is. I shall only say here that I had no intention of making a mystery of myself. But I did not expect to exchange a word with any one in America but Judge Trent and his household or associates.

"I came to America for one purpose only, to settle my affairs, which would have dragged on indefinitely if I had not been able to receive my allocated properties in person. I know many people in New York, but I had not intended seeing any of them, although tempted on account of the horror they might help me to find out what had become of Aleria. But I had decided to leave that until the last minute. I met some who no longer interested me, and old friends of mine, but I disliked the explanations I should be forced to give them, the comments, the curiosity, the pity. I was not sure that I could control myself. When I met you I was not sure of myself. I mean by this you will come on Saturday night.

"But if that is not the first time in life that I have discovered the futility of making plans. My meeting with you and the personal interest you have awakened in me upset all calculations. I expected nothing less! If I had I should have told you the truth the night we met. But it never occurred to me . . . But it never occurred to me . . . that I could ever love any man again. I had done with all that years ago, and my intentions was to give my life and my fortune to certain projects in various states. I shall not bore you with here.

Possibly if I had met you elsewhere than at Judge Trent, or if I had not come to you and his old friends and met you as one of their number, I should have made no mystery of myself. I should have told you all about myself, and you would not know the truth about me now.

But now under the curious circumstances of our meeting after your weeks of silent devotion, but your own personality, your interest in life a flicker of youthful romance of being mistrusted that I had forgotten I had ever been one of my best illusions. I was both amused and interested, and to play a little comedy with you was irresistible. It did not occur to me for a moment that you would fall in love with me . . .

"It was not until the second time you came here after the theatre that I realized what was happening in those submerged cells of mine. But I could not make up my mind to tell you that night—nor the next. By that time I was frightened. I feared there could be only one result. I suppose all women are cowards when in love.

Could Not Last

"But I knew that this could not last, and when you asked me to go to Mrs. Oglethorpe's box I thought the time had come to [illegible] matters. After a decision to tell you that I could not tell you all that I wish to tell you myself, and for that reason I have asked you to dismiss me with no explanation. It will probably be the last time I shall see you, but I am prepared for that . . .

"I shall send Jane Oglethorpe to [illegible] She has been very kind and I think she will forgive me. It would not matter much if she did not, but possibly would save me a good deal of boredom, but after [illegible] no explanation is due her.

And after Saturday night, many [illegible] matters will be entirely in your hands and I will resign whether you have merely been amused and fascinated or whether there is really between us that mysterious bond that no chance can alter. Such things have happened to men and women if we may believe history, but I have had too good reason to believe that it is not for me. However—at least for a brief time you have given me back something of the hopes and illusions of youth. This in itself is so astonishing that whatever the result I shall never be able to forget you.

"Until Saturday,

"M."

Clavering's immediate act was to dash off a love-letter more impassioned than any he had ever dreamed himself capable of writing, vowing that he was dazzled and fascinated, God knew, but that he loved her with the love of his life and would marry her if she would have him, no matter what her reservations. And with what patience he could muster and with no grace whatever he would make no attempt to see her until Saturday night.

But she must believe that he loved her, and she must write at once and tell him so. He could see clearly throughout that intervening interval unless she wrote him at once that she believed in the passion and the indissolubility of that bond, and that he had given her the highest and deepest and most honorable love of which man was capable, and which no woman had ever could inspire, for no woman like her had ever lived.

The knack of feeding your family

YOU know it—the knack of feeding your family is in giving them things they like—and in keeping your menu from becoming monotonous.

On a larger scale, America's great chefs have exactly the same problem. They must constantly introduce new and good things to eat. And the green olive recipes they use are simply great—the tangy flavor of green olives blends so wonderfully with other foods.

We have printed some of these prize recipes in a folder. There are recipes for dinners, for luncheons, for teas, for parties. We shall gladly mail you a copy free and postpaid. Your request on a postal will bring it. Address

In Speaking

Wrong.

"Verbal will is admitted to probate."

Right.

"Oral will is admitted to probate." Every will, unless conveyed by signs, is verbal—i. e., composed of words, either written or oral. The will in question was made orally. A secondary meaning of verbal permits its use for oral.

Wrong.

"The work is most done."

Right.

"The work is almost done." The use of "most" for "almost" is incorrect.

Wrong.

"We had ought to go."

Right.

"We ought to have gone." The verb "ought" has no tense sign of its own, but takes its present or past tense from its object—the infinitive that follows it.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS
PROCLAMATION BY TRUMPET

By Temple Manning

IN Central Asia, wedged in between Asiatic Russia on the north and Afghanistan on the south, is the very old khanate of Bokhara.

Bokhara is also the name of the capital of this interesting state. Although now under Russian influence, it still has its hereditary ruler.

Here is found all the mystery and tradition of the Orient. Being on the direct line between Europe and eastern Asia, it is the stopping place for huge caravans, and is the general clearing-house for merchandise between the west and the far east.

Bokhara has always been known as "Bokhara, the Noble," for it has been for centuries the center of learning and culture of this part of the world.

There is hardly a street—and what dirty, narrow ones they are—which doesn't boast of a school or college.

The citizens of Bokhara will heavenly tell you of their three hundred and fifty-six institutions of learning. But, I am told, an actual count brings it down to an even eighty. Most of the schools are Mohammedan theological seminaries. The most elaborate was built in 1372, by Abdulla. And, of course, the sky-line is broken frequently by the minarets and the domes of the many mosques.

The streets are humming with activity—all sorts of trades being represented in the various bazaars which line the sidewalks. In Bokhara you can buy anything from grain, livestock and firearms to the finest silks, shawls and exquisitely wrought jewelry.

The whole atmosphere of Bokhara is old—centuries old. Life is much the same as it was a thousand years ago.

The only sign of modernism is the Russian Trans-Caspian Railway, by which one can now reach Bokhara.

But the laborious puffing of the locomotive trails sounds out of place in this eastern capital.

A BOKHARA HERALD.

For in Bokhara, when a new edict is passed, an official in true Biblical style, sounds his trumpet. The turbaned population rush to the square to hear the edict which the herald proclaims with much pomp and dignity.

SPAGHETTI RECIPES

New England housewives are now given a chance to win six packages of Mueller's delicious spaghetti by sending in recipes for the best way of cooking appetizing dishes of spaghetti or noodles. For each recipe printed here six packages will be sent. Address Spaghetti Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street.

Mueller's Spaghetti Salmon Loaf

One can of best salmon, 1 cup of cooked Mueller's spaghetti, cup of milk, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-3 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon butter. Pick all the bones from the salmon; beat the eggs. Mix all together until well mixed. Butter a mold, pack with the mixture and steam 3 hours. If too moist, dry off in the oven. Serve hot with sauce or ice cold with lemon.

No. 61 B street, Knightville, Me.

Spaghetti Au Gratin (With Tomatoes)

Boil Mueller's spaghetti in water until tender, drain, butter a fireproof dish and place a layer of spaghetti in it. Fill up with another layers of spaghetti and tomatoes, scattering grated cheese between each layer. Over the top layer place small pieces of butter, season with salt and pepper and bake in a hot oven about 20 minutes and serve at once.

FOXY GRANDPA STORY
QUEER CHINESE SOUP

"YUM, YUM!" murmured Bobby as he sat eating shrimp in the home of a Chinese gentleman we were visiting in Shanghai.

"Yum, yum! I could eat it. It is delicious, Bobby, but I'll bet you can't tell me what kind of soup it is."

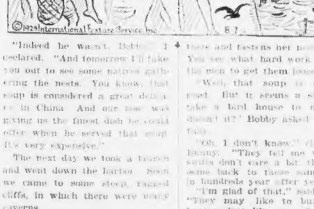
"Tell me about the soup, Foxy Grandpa. Are you sure Bunny wasn't fooling us when he said it was bird's nest soup?"

"Indeed he wasn't, Bobby," I declared. "And tomorrow I'll take you out to see some natives gathering the nests. You know that soup is considered a great delicacy in China. And our host was giving us the finest dish he could order when he served that soup. It's very expensive."

The next day we took a launch and went down the harbor. Soon we came to some steep, rugged cliffs, in which there were many caverns.

"Look, Foxy Grandpa," shouted Bobby, pointing to some men working on the ledges of the rocks, and kept from dashing into the sea below only by a strong rope suspended from the top of the cliff. "What are they doing? Isn't that dangerous?"

"They're gathering the nests," said I.



Bobby was breathless as he watched the men loosening the little spatulike knives from the rocks.

"Those are swifts' nests," I explained. "The swift is first cousin to the swallow. They build their nests against the rocks and fasten the pieces of seaweed which they use to make them with a kind of mucilage, which the mother bird has in glands in her throat. When she builds a nest the mother bird flutters there and fastens her long tail.

"Then she sits on the nest and hatches out the young birds. You see what hard work it is for the men to get them loose."

"Well, that soup is certainly good. But it seems a shame to take a bird house to make it. Why don't they build new nests?" Bobby asked thoughtfully.

"Oh, I don't know," chimed in Bunny. "They tell me that the swifts don't care a bit for that. They come back to build new nests in hundreds year after year."

"I'm glad of that," said Bobby. "They may like to build new houses—just like men do. What do you think, Foxy Grandpa?"

"I wouldn't be surprised if you were right, Bobby," I answered.

WHAT THE STARS SAY

LUCKY DAY TO INVEST

A FATHER persuading and annoying day may be read from the planetary regency. There may be danger through rash and impetuous conduct, and likewise the strong Martian influence may be read as forecasting accident or fire.

It will be well to govern the conduct with coolness and precision and to keep matters well in hand, especially safeguarding the physical condition and that of the household. Refrain from quarrels and short litigation, but investments will pay.

Tomorrow and Saturday are unlucky days for new ventures.

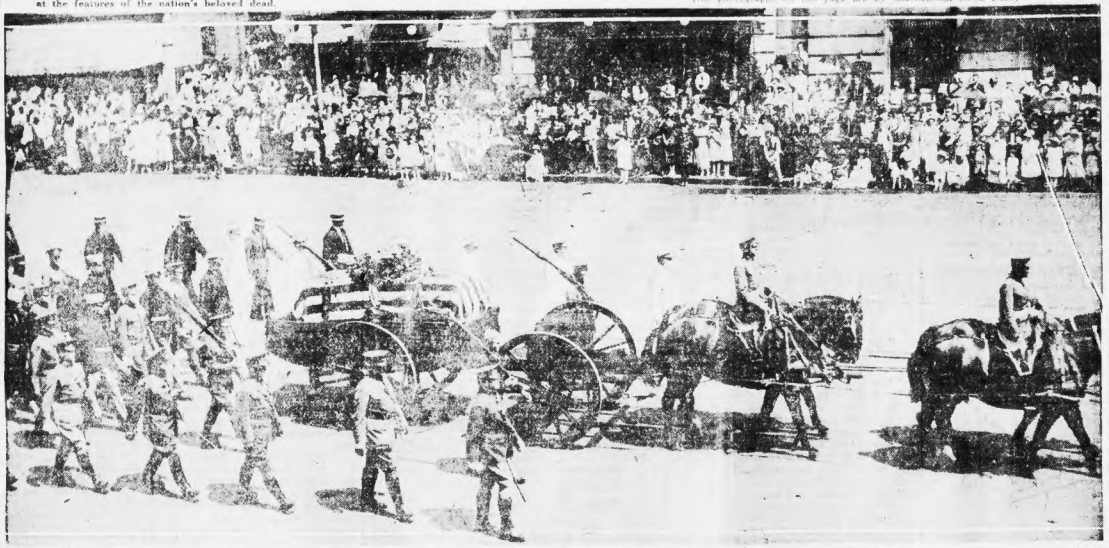
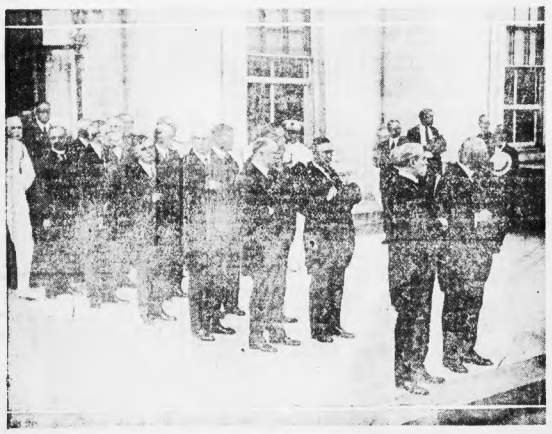
IN THE EAST ROOM OF THE WHITE HOUSE—Here the body of President Harding was taken from the funeral train. Flowers and wreaths were tenderly placed around the flag-draped casket. Soldiers guarded it throughout the night. Just before the funeral hour the casket was opened for the farewell gaze of relatives and friends at the features of the nation's beloved dead.

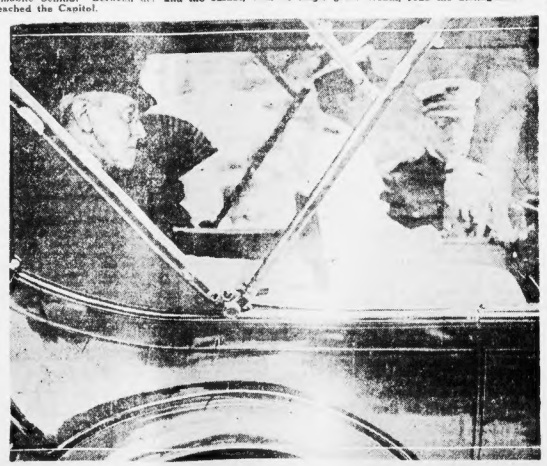
PRESIDENT COOLIDGE ARRIVES at the White House to take his place in the procession to the Capitol. His usually inscrutable face showed a grief and realization of the grave role which he has been called upon by Fate to fill. (All photographs on this page are by International News Reel.)



ON THE WAY TO THE CAPITOL—The body of the late President in the casket resting on the black-wheeled artillery caisson drawn by six black horses with the military escort. An army band with crepe-muffled drums ahead played "Onward Christian Soldiers." Mrs. Harding was in an automobile behind. Between her and the casket, with its single great wreath, rode the distinguished pallbearers. Almost before the caisson had left the White House the head of the cortege had reached the Capitol.



GOVERNMENT PAYS ITS LAST official respect to its dead chief. Assembled on the White House steps is a notable group of Cabinet members, judiciary and congressmen. In front are Secretary Hughes, Mellon, and Secretary Weeks.



EX-PRESIDENT WILSON ONE OF THE CHIEF MOURNERS—Accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, he participated to the extent of riding in the cortege from the White House to the Capitol, He did not, however, enter the rotunda for the services there.

CHAMPION HAS FAITH IN PUNCH

ST. LOUIS BROWNS HERE

By NICK FLATLEY

Ladies' Day not tried out much lately in the East, will be a regular feature, if it proves any kind of success. So it's up to the ladies to rouble forth and secure themselves baseball from now on once a week. Young men who have just returned from the vacation and are consequently rather strapped, can likewise take advantage of the chance for a free blow.

George Burns

Ty Cobb

Jack Quinn

Manager Austin has been a prominent and prominent fixture in the American League as long as we can remember. He was a rattling fine third baseman in his day, and one of the game's birds in the pastime. He has been coaching and doing the right stuff for the first few seasons, so directing will not be a novelty to him. Chances are Cobb Burns is only in there as sort of a bobbery, anyhow. But we imagine he will have his game right on the jump as long as he has the chance.

* * *

Of course, it sometimes happens that a man with the most extraordinary confidence in himself may fail to what he sets out to do.

Floyd Johnson, the young Iowa boxer of 21, is one of the most self-confident fighters the writer has ever seen. Before he met Willard, Johnson had never been knocked off his feet, and he had an idea that no man who lived could knock him off his feet.

He was over-confident, which is

FIRPO'S PUNCH MAY UPSET DEMPSEY, SAYS RUNYON

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1923, by Universal Service)

Jack Dempsey didn't think he could fight when Jack Beatrie got hold of him.

In fact, Dempsey had about decided to quit the game for good.

Beatrie probably wasn't deceived by Dempsey's ability to the beginning, but every time Dempsey knocked over some big, ox Beatrie told Dempsey how good Dempsey was, how he held he was the toughest man in the business.

Beatrie kept telling Dempsey he was going to be champion of the world. He called him "Champ" long before Dempsey was anywhere near a match with Willard. What was the result?

The result was to make Dempsey himself think he could fight. He commenced thinking of himself as champion of the world.

* * *

If Firpo will only be able to take advantage of the chances he has a chance to be champion of the world. But he has to be a wonder.

The writer thinks Firpo has weaknesses against which Dempsey will have little difficulty in working.

Dempsey is a master at finding openings in the defense of his opponent, and Firpo has many openings

MR. GALLAGHER and MR. SHEAN

THE Boston American awards each week an original Gallagher & Shean drawing to the reader who sends in the best Gallagher & Shean lyric.

One is selected for publication in this column every day, and on Saturday the winner of the best one of the week gets a drawing as matted the winner.

Today's selection will be among the six from which the week's winner will be selected. It is by W. L. Joyce, No. 567 Atwells avenue, Providence, R. I.

Oh Mr. Gallagher, Oh Mr. Gallagher!
Did you have much trouble running your machine?
Did you ever get a jolt,
By the dropping of a bolt,
Or forget to fill your tank with gasoline?
Oh Mr. Shean, Oh Mr. Shean!
I have a car that don't need gasoline.
It will go and bring you back,
With just one thing in your park—
A windmill, Mr. Gallagher?
An Oil Can, Mr. Shean.

Write one Address your lyrics to Gallagher & Shean, care of the Boston American, No. 10 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

MONEY AND LUCK IN YOUR NAME

NAMESTERS! What can you do with your name?

Can you make a funny sentence out of it? Or a wise sentence? Or a snappy one? Or a slangy one? Or any kind of a sentence?

The Boston American offers prizes for bright or unusual sayings made up of the first letters of either your FIRST, middle or LAST name.

Every one printed gets a dollar. Each week a prize of $5 will be given to the best one used that week.

Everybody in Boston takes a shot at this game. It's plenty of fun trying to figure out the different sentences you can make in this way. And if you get one printed it means a dollar, or $5 if it is the best one printed during the week.

Send as many as you like. Make up sentences from your first, middle or last name. Nobody is barred.

Yes, Jonathan, it is correct English to say "I'm going out with the boys tonight," but don't let the wife hear it as wives aren't much up on the rules of grammar.

No, Ophelia, Shakespeare didn't write "Three Weeks." They didn't rush things in his day the way they do in our generation.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury.

IT'S a well-known fact that the world owes every man a living, but a lot of us are too busy to go out and collect it.

WE just sit around and wait for it to come to us.

THE world is positively willing to give you a living, but you must expect to have it delivered.

THE terms are cash, and no credit. You have great a man may be in one's town an account with me.

THE world is sometimes slow to realize what it owes you, but maybe you don't settle your bills as promptly either.

ONE may found out that the world owes him a living, and tried to get it through a collection agency.

OF course, once in a while the world cheerfully gives you your living until it is too late for you to use it.

SOME rules are so stingy that they even extend their meat goes to living, too.

A LOT of business men collect considerably a living except their own.

THE trouble is that some men is living right now and leave out your livelihood to his debts.

BE sure and right; maybe your name will take it away from you.

EVERY man, woman and child in the United States should have something else $31.60 each. If they haven't some they ought to have it then there's some duty owed owing on.

IF you've only got $31.60 and the man next door has $31.60, then the two of you are $63.20 too deficient Sundays to you.

THE United States says that you should save up to it if you try to live within your means this city will not put in jail.

SO it's up to you to decide whether you'd rather have $31.60 and be in jail or have ten dollars less and stay outside.

THE government says that you should save up so the best way to do that is to buy your ticket book and let them find it for you.

THE only way you can get any money is by working for it, most of the paternal jobs are filled.

IT is delightful to go out and work hard and make some money, but there are extra cents than ten other people are working twice as hard trying to take it away from me.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

The Boston American will pay $1 for published smart sayings. Address "Smart Sayings," Boston American.

Having four years of age, while drinking cocoa, being accompanied to drinking it, took found it a little warm and continued to sip another. Mrs. Hall noticed it and a lower like you had when you were sick."

GLADYS STREET,
R. F. D. No. 2, South Berwick, Maine.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

The Boston American will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment in My Life." Address Embarrass-

The most embarrassing moment of my life was when I was getting on a Chestnut Hill car. I dropped the coin in the box and took a seat. In a little while I felt someone tapping me on the shoulder. I looked around and there was the conductor holding the coin in full view. What was my embarrassment when I found I had dropped a cent in instead of a dime.

FINANCE AND TRADE

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

Just now "bear" forces the New York Stock Exchange really is not generally appreciated here in New England. A thorough survey of the major market list, however, will reveal to the well-informed that a very large percentage of the companies with stocks traded in on the big board have close and vital connections with the welfare of the country.

Practically all the big companies and many of the smaller ones, main thin offices in Boston and for a few also have offices in other cities of New England.

It is significant that the high grade dividend payers include those which do the greatest volume in the New England States.

"Figures that go to 20 to an exact confirm to fractional steps of 5 meters. If stainless was steel covering the issues made of New England they would show rather discouraging reflection to date, if completed. I have found in recent trips along the coast are mystified A few of the biggest industries seem to be doing well.

Figures for all articles and industries alone, however, would be no accurate index for New England's financial business, which has been set on a increased basis during the increased spend out by the thousands growing peasantry of the summer bills.

* * *

While nearly everyone seems willing to concede that the motor truck has definitely taken the place of the railroad as a source of so-called "short haul" traffic, there are those who takes a contrary view. He declares that truck owners are drawing far too little for transportation, so that practically all are operating at a loss.

Vice-President Ford of the Boston & Maine long ago announced that the railroad itself could not afford to reduce freight to meaning points. It is evident that the present basis for motor truck rates have not been urged sufficiently to induce our New England railroads to enter the field, but that is by no means evidence that they will not become there before.

* * *

Expert Bahson's endorsement of the equipments as likely to enjoy good business for some time to come follows the forecast made months ago to readers of the Boston American.

It has long been obvious that the assigned would be well worth while for all roles long deferred by the railroads.

A ride any train of most varieties or a glance at any freight yard is enough to demonstrate that the equipment companies have a big job on their hands without going out for more to add to the present list of railroads now in operation.

One of the real reasons, however, for equipments is the preference of the railroads by the stockholding public is because the equipments are not "common stocks."

They are operate without restriction of profits, and they have long seen since the railroads of the country recognized ability to direct their affairs.

COMPETITION HOT IN WOOLENS

Keen competition for business in spring woolens has developed with the opening of more lines of Spring samples.

The women's wear end of the business appears to be most active from the mill standpoint and lines that have opened have been well bought so far, although few of the mills are in the position of the two market leaders who have withdrawn their spring lines from further sale.

In the men's wear division trade is developing more slowly, and as fall orders are being finished up by the mills the necessity for booking spring orders exists in order to provide work for the machinery has caused some close price figuring. Some of the later openings in woolen goods distinguished from worsteds, are said by buyers to show excellent values compared with the whole that were opened a week or two ago.

A few of the big clothing manufacturers have placed spring orders but the majority have not, and it is said by them that they will not be ready to operate until next month.

"FOOL MARKET" IS VIEW OF BROKER

One of the most prominent stock-brokers in Wall Street made the statement that the present market is a "fool one." In this case, for example, Mexican Petroleum is selling at the rate of $58 per share and selling for practically the same amount. He believes that the public has little sense of values. Another stock believed to be selling out of line is Cuyamel Fruit whose earnings are said to be enormous, large in three months the normally is reported to have passed through money to pay its dividend.

NEW CROP COTTON BALE IS AUCTIONED

First bale of new crop cotton in Atlanta, Ga., was auctioned off at 25 cents a pound, bale of cotton from Dooriti, Ga. graded middling and weighed 486 pounds. First bale last year received on July 31 sold for 40 cents a pound.

AM. LOCO GOES ON BASIS OF 6 PER CENT.

'L' MEN'S WIVES TO TESTIFY AT WAGE HEARING

Housewives and not statisticians with budgets and figures, may solve the wage problem of the Boston Elevated carmen.

Attorney James H. Vahey announced for the carmen in their hearing before the arbitration board at the State House for an increase in wages scheduled that he would call witnesses today several housewives, who will testify as to the actual costs of living. George L. Mayberry is the municipal member at the hearing.

J. H. Vahey G. L. Mayberry

FIGURES DECRIED

This decision was arrived at after Arthur Sturgis, labor expert for the Federal government during the war, and now on the staff of Governor Allen, had expressed his dissatisfaction with the prevailing method of computing the cost of living, that of taking the family figures based on the trend of the cost of living in various cities.

These figures, Sturgis declared, are the annual cost of living and not merely the trend of prices up or down.

The hearing was devoted largely to the testimony of Mr. Sturgis. He quoted the statistics gathered by the country as of the opening of the present prosperity would land and pointed out that the cost of living has greatly outdistanced the increase in wages in carmen.

QUOTES HIS STUDIES

Mr. Sturgis declared that if the carmen had received the relative increase that was given to men in other lines it would bring their minimum wage from 42 to 47 cents to 55 cents per hour, or $4.55 per day. The carmen are asking for 51 cents an hour.

Sturgis also quoted figures compiled by the federal government showing that since January, 1922, there had been 1,703 wage increases reported and only 45 reductions.

WILL RATIFY R. R. WAGE DEMANDS

Cleveland O. Aug. 8 (A.P.)—Approximately 150 of the 450 members of General Chairmen of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and order of Railway Conductors on eastern trunk line railroads met today to consider the question of increased compensation. This is the final meeting on the question.

A Chicago meeting went on record for restoration of the 5 cents an hour or 6½ cents a day reduction ordered by the U. S. Railroad Labor Board on July 1, 1921, in effect since that time, and in addition requested a small additional increase, it is understood. A Washington meeting occurred in the action and it is expected that the Cleveland conference here will ratify the action.

The question then will be submitted in a referendum vote of the 200,000 trainmen and the 50,000 conductors.

WHEAT FARMERS LOSE MILLIONS

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 9. (AP)—Publicity urging the farmers not to hold their wheat off the market has only tended to discourage them still more and bring "an economic debacle, which has got to the point where it is cutting into the living standards of the farmers," declared Arthur Capper of Kansas declared in a letter sent today to P. A. Cooper, head of the Federal Farm Loan Board at Washington, from whose office the Senator said such publicity has been coming.

"Out of every hundred bushels this year are not available, but it is probable they will be little, if any, lower than for the crop of 1922, which was 51.34 a bushel. The huge amount of grain produced in Kansas this year has been sold for a net loss of 36 cents a bushel. Unless the market advances we have lost $40,000,000 on this year's crop," the Senator said.

CHAMBER ADDS TO MILESTONE FUND

Recent contributions have added $20 to the fund being raised by the Boston Chamber of Commerce to erect a "milestone" on that part of the monument line in France where rolled tremps turned the German invasion in 1918. The fund has now reached a total of $200, according to a statement from the chamber. The latest contributions are: Bowen Tufts, 150 Congress street, $5; Francis A. Countway of Lever Bros. Company, 80; Frank Lawrence, 814 Tremont Building, $5, and C. H. Scovell, 110 State street, $5.

BEE KEEPERS HOLD OUTING SATURDAY

The Massachusetts Society of Bee Keepers will journey to Hyde Park next Saturday afternoon, according to announcement made with their leaders of bees, to attend the annual field meeting on the grounds of Professor A. Wilfred Bartlett, No. 24 Fairmont street, Hyde Park. Dr. Burton N. Gates of the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture will deliver an address.

Prizes will be awarded for the best twelve sections of honey sent in for exhibition and for the best twelve specimens of comb honey.

The field day committee includes Frank W. Prosser, W. A. Munroe, A. Wilfred Bartlett and E. Clinton Huffton.

TERRORISTS SEIZED IN SPANISH RAIDS

Barcelona, Spain, Aug. 9 (A.N.S.)—Wholesale police raids were made here today, resulting in the arrest of a band of terrorists. Labor leaders were among those taken into custody on a charge of their activities.

What Kind of Game Do You Play?

Is Your Mind On the Real Game or On a Dozen Outside Ones?

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

This is an editorial which might be headed "KEEP YOUR MIND ON THE ONE IMPORTANT THING." It is an editorial about concentration, about putting your REAL thought on some real WORK.

You don't need the editorial and ought not to waste time reading it if you are quite sure that the best that is in you is being used every hour, and used to give you the best chance possible.

Among a million men there may be one or two that really play the game of life as a good player plays the game of chess. One or two men in a million do not need to talk or think about the importance of concentration—but all the rest of us do need to realize what intense concentration might mean to us.

There isn't a man who doesn't WANT something that he hasn't got. There isn't one that isn't planning in a more or less aimless way to do something, to get something, to BE something. And there really is not one that could not succeed fairly well, at least, IF HE COULD ONLY KEEP HIS MIND ON REAL THINGS AND OFF OF OTHER THINGS.

Have you ever seen two men play chess, a good player and a bad player? The bad player begins apologizing for himself before the thing starts, apologizes all the way through, and loses at the end, even though the queen or other pieces be given to him in advance.

The good player sits down, looks good-naturedly at his opponent, watches his first move, plans the thing out, wins smilingly and easily, BUT HIS MIND HAS BEEN ON THE GAME.

Life is a game. Everyone of us must play it whether he wants to or not. And everyone plays the game with the same old partner—TIME.

At life's table, opposite you, sits Time with his scythe, and at his elbow the stake—SUCCESS.

Anything that takes your mind off the game gives Time the advantage. That is to say, anything that does not at the same time add TO YOUR POWER of work and thought.

Time plays against us all, and he nearly always wins. Millions of men and women in the world are saying every day, "If I were YOUNGER I would do this" or "I would do that." Every man thinks of what he would do if he had to live over again the hours during which he let Time win while he lost.

There is no use going back over the moves that have been made foolishly. The game is still on, and it is never too late to win it if you will MAKE UP your mind, concentrate your mind and brush aside interruptions.

Time is a good-natured old man, he plays fairly and leniently. He is relentless in his steady onward pace; he never gives you back the day that you have given him for nothing. That is one day OFF THE BOARD. But you can win and beat him in the days that remain, if you will.

Lectures on concentration are needed by YOUNG men especially. For their temptations are the most numerous. Much intelligence is used up trying to get their minds away from the real work.

Foolish fashions make them waste time on their clothes, their hats, THEIR LOOKS, when those looks amount to nothing. The man of brains should simply make up his mind TO LOOK CLEAN, TO SHOW SELF-RESPECT; nothing else matters.

The hard thing for young men and others to remember is that THEIR WORK is their real occupation. Take the average young man playing a game of cards, of baseball, or of any other MERE AMUSEMENT. If you should try at THAT time to interest him in some outside thing, some new kind of a hatband, some new color for the cravat, he would say to you, "Don't bother me, I am busy NOW, you will make me lose the game."

How many know enough to say the same when they are playing life's REAL game, which is the game of work?

Many young men act like a man who has forgotten the road, or like a drunken man staggering to the right and to the left, falling down, getting up and finally landing in jail instead of landing at home.

The road before every man is perfectly clear, and there is only just ONE way of getting over that road, which is TO WALK STRAIGHT AHEAD TO THE END OF IT.

Suppose a man were locked up in jail and had to make his way out. What would you think of him if one day he started to bore a hole in ONE spot and next day started a hole in another spot, and kept on all his life starting little holes in different spots and never going on with any one of them? You would think him a lunatic. Yet that is what ninety-nine men out of a hundred do in this life.

We are all of us locked up here, all of us imprisoned by conditions by which we must bore a hole if we want to get out and amount to anything. We try this way and try that way and try the other, and do nothing, WHEREAS BY TRYING ONE WAY AND KEEPING AT THAT WAY WE COULD GET OUT IN THE END.

We have talked on this subject of concentration before. We shall talk about it again. YOU CANNOT SUCCEED IN THE BIG THING IF YOU LET THE LITTLE THINGS TAKE UP YOUR MIND AND YOUR TIME.

If your best thought goes to the selection of a straw hat, and your second best thought to the selection of your clothes, and your third best thought to some profound speculation on the races or the result of the baseball competition, WHAT KIND OF THOUGHT IS LEFT FOR THE REAL WORK?

And what in the world can help you or give you any kind of success, except steady grinding at the real work?

When you wake up in the morning say to yourself, "I am going to keep at my work and think of nothing else today." Don't think with how little work you can get through today, but, on the contrary, HOW MUCH work you can get into it. Whatever you have undertaken to do, do it better than the next man, and not only better than the next man, but AS WELL AS IT IS POSSIBLE FOR YOU TO DO IT.

We do not share the comfortable theory that ANY man can achieve anything that he desires if he will work hard enough. That is not true. Edison could not possibly have painted as well as Sargent, and Sargent could not possibly have developed Edison's inventive genius.

But neither Edison nor Sargent, nor any other man that you hear about, would have been a success if he hadn't KEPT ONE THING IN HIS MIND ALL THE TIME.

Your mind is the tool that you have got to work with. Hands and feet are the small tools, the servants of the working brain, the real tool. Keep your brain clear, clean and concentrated. Don't load it up with unnecessary burdens, unnecessary interests. Toward life's frivolities and useless discussions—excepting those that really improve the mind—let your mental attitude be, "I don't know and I don't care. I am playing a game against time and against life. I have got to win it, and I can't let other things interfere with it."

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON PARIS AND THE SEINE

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

THIS is not by a thousand the first time that the way the French manage the River Seine in Paris has been held up for the admiration of foreigners, especially Americans. It cannot thus be held up too often. It is one of the things that make the French capital the queen of cities.

To see how a river can impart loftiness to a city is only necessary to take a look at the East River and the Harlem River in their passage through New York. I admit that maybe neither of them could be as easily managed as the Seine is. The Paris riverbanders are not troubled by tides; though, on the other hand, they are sometimes troubled by floods.

Human Element

But the main thing is the inspiration—the human element. If you haven't the eye for beauty, if the artistic instinct is not a part of your bread-and-butter, of your life, not only a jar of jam from which you take a spoonful as a kind of ornamental round-up to your meals, you will never create a city like Paris. Its planners and builders have not fallen down and worshipped at the feet of the god of "business." If he has ever arisen in their way they have made him stand back and keep his proper place. And Paris hasn't lost anything by this defiance. She could never have been herself without it.

Of course the Seine is not so large as the East River—which is in fact, a tidal channel and not a river at all—but it is as large as the Harlem, which is at least partly a real river. The Seine is navigable, but they don't let vessels with high masts pass through Paris. The Seine is one of her streets, and city streets are no place for ships, or railroad trains.

The Seine is bordered with beautiful stone quays and solid walls, as a street is bordered with sidewalks and curbs. Its many bridges have their solid floors almost flush with the level of the banks. Great avenues, a hundred or two hundred feet wide in many places, tree-shaded and washed and swept every morning bound the shores for miles. If the Seine is thus famed, civilized, and embellished to make it worthy of being part of Paris, it is, at the same time, respected on its own accounts. By giving it room and breathing space they have kept it attractive. Outside of Paris it is one of the most beautiful rivers in the world, and when it enters the city it is not turned into an offence, as, I am sorry to admit, it would be if it had the misfortune to run through a big American town.

You can't make a city a center of civilization in any high sense simply by constructing fine and ornamental buildings, wherever the utilitarian spirit may leave room for them, and planting down big museums of art and science in odd places, here and there. You must have the buildings and the museums—but only as parts of a consistent whole.

Your entire city must express civilization by showing to every visitor, without the need of any guidance or comment whatever, the fineness of the spirit.

River Is Trained

The Seine in Paris is trained in consonance with the Louvre, the Sorbonne, the Institute, the great churches, the schools of art, the magnificent avenues, and that general tone of fine civilization which makes that famous city a cynosure for the world. In consonance with what have the East River, the Harlem River, and the Chicago River been trained?

I do not, however, mean to suggest that our cities, transited by rivers, should try to do just what Paris has so superbly done. In most cases, owing largely to local circumstances, that would be impracticable. Big Business would not permit it, anyway. Even now attempts are made, under one pretense or another, to turn parks and other reserves that have been withdrawn from utilitarian uses to some purpose of gain and pecuniary profit. Between the intensely "practical" men and the aesthetic few there is a fog of non-comprehension that the former can never penetrate. He was born for the world of the senses, and scoffs at any of them.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

ABOUT MARIE ANTOINETTE

By MARK STUYVESANT

TO the superstitious, evil omens indicated disaster the day of her birth and on her marriage day for Marie Antoinette, the ill-fated Queen of France.

For on the second of November in 1755 an earthquake destroyed the city of Lisbon, Portugal, and left in its wake death, suffering and misery to thousands.

It was on this day that the little Princess Marie Antoinette was born to the Emperor Francis the First and his militant Empress, Marie Therese, of Austria.

From the moment of her birth, Marie Antoinette's ambitious mother planned to marry her daughter to a French prince and thus form a lasting alliance between the two countries which were natural enemies.

By the time Marie Antoinette was fourteen all arrangements for her marriage to the Dauphin of France were complete.

This child-bride of fourteen started out on her journey to Paris. It was no less than a triumphal procession. Every village hailed her. Flowers were strewn in her pathway. It was indeed an experience which might well have appealed to the princess in a fairy tale.

Naturally the young dauphin was delighted with his lovely bride and welcomed her with fervor.

But at Versailles, where she was received, was the "royal" palace crowded with thousands of courtiers and dependents who resented the entrance of "La Petite Autrichienne" into their little domain and who were not hesitant in showing their displeasure. In fact, this undercurrent of dislike was not confined to Versailles. It was general throughout Paris and France.

In May, 1774, Louis the Fifteenth died. Louis the Sixteenth was crowned King and Marie Antoinette became Queen of France. Her mother's wishes were realized. Marie Antoinette had inherited her mother's arrogance and firm belief that those of the royal family could do no wrong.

Had she been of different character, Marie Antoinette might have prevented the Reign of Terror.

To her, when told that the people of Paris were crying for bread is ascribed the remark:

"If they have no bread, why don't they eat cake?"

Although Marie Antoinette was frivolous, pleasure-loving and extravagant, it seems improbable that the mother of children could have sneeringly jeered at others' suffering.

But the people were ready to attach anything unpleasant to "this foreigner's" name.

Unjustly, she was accused of having bestowed her favors on Cardinal Rohan, when a bogus countess swindled a jeweler out of the famous diamond necklace and pretended it was Marie Antoinette for whom it was bought by the cardinal.

The scandal arising from this criminal intrigue, of which Marie Antoinette was absolutely innocent, swept Paris like a raging fire.

This hurt the queen more than anything else could possibly have done. It not only lessened her precarious popularity, but it broke her spirit and her health. From then on she was an unhappy woman.

But Marie Antoinette was bold—even brave. When, a few days after the fall of the Bastille, a great banquet took place at Versailles the mob sacked the palace. Marie Antoinette was shrieked for and appeared on the balcony unafraid. She sent her children from her and stood alone facing the brutal marauders.

The mob was so impressed by her dignity and courage that, without realizing what they were doing, they cheered her. But it was a narrow escape.

The next day the royal family was driven to Paris and imprisoned in the Tuileries.

An escape was attempted. While the royal family in a carriage were hastening to freedom, they were arrested at Varennes.

Again they were thrown into the Tuileries.

The king was confined in a separate cell and was soon guillotined. Marie Antoinette never saw her children again.

Marie Antoinette's trial—which was a farce—was quickly followed by her execution. Not for one moment did she lose her dignity or her calmness in the face of death. Her only words were:

"Adieu, adieu, once again, my dear, dear children. I go to rejoin your father."

UNIQUE NEW GUN TRIED OUT

ROME, Aug. 9.—A machine gun weighing only eight kilograms, said to be the lightest ever built, was demonstrated here recently at a local arms manufactory. It fires 2500 shots per minute and is designed to take Italian cartridges.

The gun was invented by a Dane named Madsen. The demonstration was witnessed by numerous Italian naval and military officials, and the minister and consul of Denmark. The experiments proved all claims made for the invention.

Alas, Poor Shirt!

Editor Boston American:

Before me lies what was once a shirt. Now a sad memory, a composite of shreds, irregular stitches, seared and shattered—a monument to a laundry which advertised "Laundry, just like your mother does." It's not only a doubtful tribute but a gentle reminder of the maze I have from the laundry proprietor which assures me "your shirt has been repaired and is in just as good condition, excepting its wash, as when we received it." Alas, poor shirt, I expected to wear you and you cost me $7.

Careless Smoker

Editor Boston American:

Recently, while wheeling my baby along the street, her screams led to the discovery of a lighted cigar lodged between her neck and dress. The burn was deep, as well as very painful. Can't smokers be more thoughtful than to toss lighted cigars or cigarettes out of windows?

THE HELPING HAND

Do Not Inclose Stamps. Letters Will Not Be Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls. No Names Are Published.

Has Eight; Expects Another

Editor Helping Hand:

I am the mother of eight children and expecting the stork to call on me in October. I am in need of a mattress for my bed before I am sick and a few baby clothes. My husband does not have steady work, and what he does make goes to buy food and pay the rent. The oldest one of my family is eleven years old and the youngest is just one year. I would be very glad if someone could help me out of my troubles as it is a hard struggle when you are in poor health yourself.

MRS. C. C.

Shoes for Man

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a new pair of men's brown oxfords, size 7D. Please send me the name of some man who wears that size.

MRS. G. O'B.

Thank you. They will be held for replies.

Summer Coats to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like some patchwork pieces from Miss A. W. or others. I have two Summer coats for a small woman, size 32, and a small man's top coat, size 34, which I will send to whoever can use them.

MRS. C. M. R.

Thank you. They will be held for replies, as we have none so small on file.

Offers Many Dresses

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like the address of a family in which there are girls from ten to fourteen years of age. I have a suit, many dresses, hats and other things to make over which I would delight in giving to someone in poor circumstances. I also have some good footwear that I would give to some needy persons. They are all size 2½D, including one pair of brown shoes, three pairs of brown oxfords, two pairs of blue pumps, three pairs of patent leather sandals and a pair of white canvas oxfords. I shall probably find other things later on. Best of luck in the good work you are doing.

L. J. S.

Many thanks. The address of Mrs. J. H. P., who has girls of the age you mention, and whose husband has suffered from unemployment, has been sent you. If her girls cannot wear the shoes, will you let us know?

Coat and Dresses

Editor Helping Hand:

I have just read the American and I am very sorry for the people who are in want. I have a blue skirt, size 38, a black suit and waist, a black and white gingham dress, and a heavy coat with black seal collar. Anyone who needs them may have them with best regards.

R. W.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. L. M. W., who has nine children, and whose husband has suffered from unemployment.

Dresses and Skirts

Editor Helping Hand:

I have some cotton dresses and skirts, I will gladly give to some one needing them. If you will send me the address I will see that they get them.

MRS. H. W. G.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. E. B., who is much in need of clothing of that size.

Offers Infant Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I have quite a number of infant's clothes my baby has outgrown, all in perfect condition, that will fit a baby under six months. Also I can get together some good Summer dresses to fit a girl sixteen or a little larger. I will mail them to anyone you suggest.

MRS. C. T.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. M. A., who will be very grateful for the things you mention.

Dress to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you please send me the address of some poor woman. I have a dress and a few things, size 38 and a Spring coat.

MISS E. E. D.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. E. D., who will be very grateful for these things.

Thanks to Mrs. W. L. A.

Editor Helping Hand:

I received a big bundle from Mrs. W. L. A. and am more than pleased with it and I wish to thank you and her for helping me over the hard places. I hope I will be able to help someone soon.

MRS. H. G. B.

Things for Baby

Editor Helping Hand:

If you will send me Mrs. K. D. C.'s address, I have some little dresses for a two or three year old girl, and will be able to send a few things for the newcomer. Perhaps some mother would like a baby carriage. A coat of enamel would fix it up.

MRS. R. M. B.

Thank you. You have been sent Mrs. K. D. C.'s address and the address of Mrs. G. N., who will be very happy indeed to get a baby carriage.

Clothes Offered

Editor Helping Hand:

I have some blouses, two dresses, a house dress, size 38 or 40, a good hat and a pair of nearly new pumps, size 2½. If you will give me the name of some one who would like these, I will be glad to send them, postpaid.

A. M. B.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. E. C., who will be very grateful for them.
